

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

I N presenting to the members of the Chetham Society what I may call another Chapter in the History of Amounderness, I have few introductory remarks to make. The parish of Garstang is — next to the parish of Kirkham — the largest in the hundred, and from its situation, antiquity and surroundings, it was thought that its records could not fail to yield much that would be interesting to the historian and genealogist. In this respect my hopes have been more than realized, as I venture to think the following pages will show. Every available source of information has been consulted, and no effort has been spared to exhaust the subject without printing what would be of little or no value. I am greatly indebted to many owners of land in Garstang and possessors of title-deeds and other manuscripts relating to the parish, whose names will be found in the foot notes of the History; but I am under special obligation to the following gentlemen, and I wish here to record my sense of it, viz: the Rev. WILSON PEDDER, M.A., vicar of Garstang; the Rev. W. ARMITSTEAD, of St. Thomas's, Garstang; the Rev. J. D. BANISTER, late incumbent of Pilling; the Rev. J. W. WAITHMAN, M.A., vicar of Pilling; Lord WINMARLEIGH; JAMES NICHOLSON, Esq., F.S.A., of Warrington ; RICHARD PEDDER, Esq., of Ulverston ; RICHARD VEEVERS, Esq., of Preston, and the Bailiff and Burgesses of the town of Garstang. To my friends J. E. BAILEY, Esq., F.S.A., of Stretford ; J. P. EARWAKER, Esq., F.S.A., of Withington ; Colonel J. L. CHESTER, LL.D., of London, and WILLIAM BEAMONT, Esq., of Orford hall, I also tender my sincere thanks for kindly assistance.

content ourselves with a brief description of the various "finds" which have been made.

It will be well to bear in mind that nearly all authorities agree that a Roman road passed through Bilsborrow and Claughton, and that the site of it in the latter place is still known as "Fleet street."

In 1856, near the southern base of Bone or Bon hill in Pilling during an excavation there, the foundation of an ancient habitation was discovered. It consisted of a circular trench of about eighteen inches wide, nearly twenty inches deep, and four yards in diameter; upon the enclosed space the clay excavated had been thrown and had become converted into a dry disintegrated sand. The remains of trees and wood around had been charred by fire, and charcoal was scattered about; and near to the circle a considerable quantity of hazel and alder poles was found, and not far distant, as the farmer described it, a "hatful of nuts." Bonehill, although now two miles above high-water mark, stands on the verge of an ancient sea beach.<sup>1</sup>

In Pilling Moss about a mile and a half of an ancient causeway has been traced, which is known by the name of Dane's Pad, and about which there is a diversity of opinion, some maintaining that it is of Roman origin, and others that it is nothing more or less than the remains of a foot path made by the monks of Cockersand Abbey as a means of access to their large possessions in Rawcliffe and the neighbourhood.

The direction of the path is in a straight line from Pilling Hall to Hales Hall in Rawcliffe, and it is now several feet below the surface of the moss; it is formed of large oak trees riven or sawn asunder, and laid upon sleepers to which the trees are fastened by wooden pegs going through the sleepers into the ground; its width is from fourteen to twenty inches.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> See Trans. of Lanc. and Chesh., Hist. Soc., pp. 111, 120. Another path, called "Kate's Pad," Mr. Thornber states tradition says, was formed by two ladies to obtain snuff with expedition from Lancaster.

At Cogie Hill in Winmarleigh, some years ago, was dug up an oak box fastened together with oak pins, which contained several celts, arrow heads, &c., which are now deposited in the Warrington Museum, and which are thus described by Mr. H. Syer Cuming :

"The largest is perhaps one of the finest examples that has been brought to light and is in excellent preservation. It measures upwards of nineteen inches in length.

"The Socket, which is one inch and three-sixteenths in diameter at the base, extends up the centre of the leaf-shaped blade to its apex. The edges are ground thin : and the blade is perforated on each side of the socket towards the lower part with an 'eye' two inches and three-sixteenths long. This specimen is in fact an example of what is called in the Irish story 'slidh cheann-ramhar chro-fhairsing catha,' the heavy-headed broad-eyed spear of battle : a form, however, which is found in north and south Britain, as well as in Hibernia.

"The second spear-head is of a much smaller size and less ornate character than its gigantic companion. It is nearly eight inches and a half long.

"The edges of its leaf-shaped blade are ground sharp, the socket extends to the very point, and measures one inch in diameter at the base : and like the socket of the first specimen is perforated for the admission of a peg or rivet which secured it to the staff of ashwood."

Here were also found five specimens of what are commonly called "socketed celts," which have each a loop at one side, their faces being decorated with a tridental figure.<sup>3</sup>

The writer of the above thinks that probably these brazen arms owe their origin to the confederate Voluntii and Sistunii ; powerful tribes of Brigantes, who had the county towards the close of British independence.

At Claughton, 1822, in constructing a new road near Claughton

<sup>3</sup> Pamphlet "on British Antiquities discovered in Lancashire" and deposited in the Warrington Museum. G. H. Syer Cuming, Esq.

Hall, some workmen in cutting through a small hill or tumulus of sand about three or four feet from the surface, came upon two large convex brooches joined together and forming a sort of oval box. They were of white metal, perforated in an ornamental pattern. The box contained two beads of coloured paste, one of blue and one of red, and a molar tooth.

The brooch itself had been enclosed in a wooden case which had apparently been lined with cloth. At the same place was found an iron axe and hammer, a stone axe, maul head, an iron spear head, and an iron sword, all of which were in a wooden case. Also an urn of baked clay containing charred bones.<sup>4</sup>

We are not inclined to assign a greater antiquity to these remains than the time when Northumbria was held by the Danes, or at the farthest, the period of the Saxon Heptarchy.

If the Romans had a settlement in the parish of Garstang, whether on the unfathomable moss of Pilling or in the primeval forests of Wyresdale, long ere this some indisputable trace would have been found.

The Saxons and the Danes have left traces behind them—if in nothing else—in the names of places.

The great Domesday Survey furnishes the following particulars about the parish :

“Aschebi [? Nateby] one carucate : Cathrehala [Catterall] two carcutes : Clactune [Claughton] two carucates : Bileurde [Bilsborough] two carucates : Fortune [Forton] one carucate : Cherestang [Garstang] six carucates.”

Assuming that Aschebi was intended for Nateby, and including the whole of Forton, this only gives about 1400 acres as under cultivation at this time, nearly half of which was in the township of Garstang, whilst the township in which the church stood (if it was then in existence) is not even mentioned, unless we suppose that “Cherestang” included Kirkland, and in that case it is not improbable that Baines is correct in translating the name as “church-pool.”

Of the condition of Garstang during the twelfth century no record has been preserved; it had, however, as early as 12 Hen. III. [1226-27], given its name to a family, as a Paulinus de Gairestang was one of the knights who perambulated the Lancashire forests<sup>5</sup> (see chap. vii.) At this time the manor was part of the possessions of the Lancastres, barons of Kendal and Wyersdale, and had, no doubt, been held by them for some years, as William de Lancastre, who was steward to Henry II.<sup>6</sup> made a grant of four bovates of land in the vill of Gairstang, with the dead wood of Kirklonde, to the abbots of Cockersand Abbey, to hold as of their church of St. Helen's (see chap. ii.); he also gave to the monks and their tenants, housebot and haybot in Kirklonde and Wyresdale, and other privileges<sup>7</sup> which were confirmed by Gilbert, the son of Roger fitz Reinfrid, his son-in-law.<sup>8</sup>

By deed without date, "William de Lancastre gave to Richard le Botiller the mill of Gayrstang with its site and pool to hold by homage and service." To this deed the witnesses were "Dnā Agnetè de Lancast' spousa mea," and "Gregorie de Wymmerley," and others.<sup>9</sup>

In 31 Hen. III. (1246-47) William de Lancastre, the third baron, died without issue, seized of Scotforth, Kirkelond, Withall, Gayrestang and Warton; Agnes, his widow, held Garstang as her dower, which descended to Peter de Brus and Walter de Lindsey, his nephews and heirs.<sup>10</sup> Peter de Brus was the son of Helewise de Lancastre, the eldest sister of William de Lancastre; and Walter de Lindsey was the son of Alice, his second sister; Sarrota, the third sister, married Alan de Multon, and died s.p.

On the division of the estate the manor of Garstang passed to the Lindseys, which family terminated in an heiress, Christiana de Lindsey, who married Ingelram de Ghisna, lord of Coucy in France,<sup>11</sup> who, in 20 Edward I. (1291-92) was called on by a writ of quo warranto to show why he and Christiana, his wife, held a market, assize of bread and ale, gallows and infangthef in Warton and Gayrestang, the right to hold which belonged to the crown.

Christiana's attorney pleaded that the market was held in Warton only, and that the rights exercised in Garstang were such as William de Lancastre had died seised of. The attorney for the crown attempted to prove that a market was also held in Garstang, but failed, and therefore the jury confirmed the rights of the defendants.<sup>12</sup>

John de Blackburn of Wiswall, had a daughter and coheiress who married Sir Robert Sherburne, whose daughter Katherine married, according to one authority,<sup>13</sup> a Tempest of Bracewell, but who was probably twice married, one husband being Sir John Haverington of Farleton, who died in 1362, seised of, in right of his wife Katherine, certain lands and tenements in Garstang and Winnerlegh, held as of the manor of Wyersdale, which lands, &c., descended to his son, Sir Thomas Haverington, who died so seised 38 Edward II. (1364-65).<sup>14</sup>

Ingelram de Ghisna, the eldest son of the Lord of Coucy, was created Earl of Bedford 40 Edward III. (1366-67), and dying in (22 Ric. II.) 1398-9 left his estates to Philippa, Duchess of Ireland, who died without issue, but previous to her death a warrant, dated 9 Nov., 1411, was directed to the auditors of the duchy accounts instructing them to certify to the council whether she was entitled to assize of ale in the township of Garstang.<sup>15</sup>

to Henry, Duke of Lancaster,<sup>16</sup> whose descendant held it probably for some years, but at the same time there existed several subfeudatory lords. The Multons, who descended from Sarotta, the sister of William de Lancastre, retained lands here, and (by deed without date) Hu., son of H. de Multon de Garstang, conveyed to Hu. de Multon two bovates of land in Garstang for his homage, and an annual rent of one pound of cinnamon at the Feast of the Nativity of the Virgin.<sup>17</sup>

William Twenge, the son of Marmaduke de Twenge, who married Lucy, the daughter and coheir of Peter Brus, died 15 Edw. III. (1341-42) seised of a fourth part of knight's fee in Garstang, and his brother and heir, Thomas de Twenge, held certain wastes, called Salome.<sup>18</sup> The Inq. Post Mort. on his death was taken in 48 Edw. III. (1374-75), when he was seised of four messuages and 30 acres of land in the town of Garstang, and his heirs were Isabella, wife of Walter Penwarden, and daughter of Margareta (sister to the said Thomas Twenge); John de Hothorn de Scorbrough, son of Madilda, another daughter of Margareta's; Elizabeth, wife of William Botereaux, and daughter of Katherine, sister to Margareta and Robert de Lumley, son of Marmaduke de Lumley, who married a daughter of Lucia, sister to Thomas de Twenge.<sup>19</sup>

In 30 Edw. III. (1356-57) Sir William le Mollineux married Joane, the daughter and heiress of Jordan Ellolt and Alice his wife, daughter of Thomas Twenge, who was then forester of Wyersdale.<sup>20</sup> In 10 Hen. VI. (1431-32) Sir John de Lumley died seised of 4 messuages 33 acres of land in Garstang, and a messuage and 50 acres called Sulan.<sup>21</sup>

Robert de Coucy de Gynes held, 20 Edw. III. (1346-47), in Garstang, a mill, as well as lands, &c., in Wyersdale, Kirkland, and other parts of the parish (see post). William de Coucy died without male heirs, and his estate here went to the crown, he had held a carve of land by the fourth part of a knight's fee, paying yearly 2s. 6d. at the Nativity of John the Baptist,<sup>22</sup> which in 1349 was granted, by Edw. III., to Sir John de Coupeland and Johanna his wife (who was the widow of William de Coucy, and according to one account, daughter and heiress of John Rigmayden<sup>23</sup>), with remainder to Ingelram de Coucy, who married the king's daughter. Johanna died in 49 Edw. III. seised of Kirkland.<sup>24</sup> John de Coupeland was a distinguished soldier; at the battle of Neville's Cross, near Durham (which took place on the 17 Oct., 1347), he took prisoner the Scotch king, David II., for which he was knighted by Edw. III., who also granted him a pension of 500*l.* a year.<sup>25</sup>

In 1440 (23 Aug.) a precept was issued to the escheator of the county to give livery and seisin to Nicholas Rigmaden, son and heir of Thomas Rigmaden, of an eighth part of the manor of Garstang which his father held in fee, and other lands and tenements which were held conjointly with Alice his wife, taking security for the payment of his relief.<sup>26</sup>

It is most probable that now, and for some time previous, the real owner of the greatest part of the manor was the abbot and convent of Cockersand, to whom the minor lords owed fealty and service, and that it continue as part of the possessions of the monastery until the dissolution.

The following extracts from the Bursar Roll of the Cockersand Abbey will show the property which the abbot and convent held in this parish.

At the time of the dissolution of the monastery the manor went to the crown, and it was shortly afterwards made over to the Savoy Hospital in fee, with a saving right to all the tenants.<sup>37</sup>

In 4 and 5 Phillip and Mary (1557-8) Ralph Jackson, the master of the Savoy and perpetual chaplain of the hospital, leased the manor of Garstang to Henry Saville, Esq., for 99 years, from and after the expiration of the former lease (to John Rigmaden).<sup>38</sup>

Henry Saville<sup>39</sup> of Barroughby and Lupset, was high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1568, and from 1556 to 1567 was one of the "Council of the North." He married Jane, daughter and coheiress of William Vernon of Barroughby, and widow of Sir Richard Bozom, Knt., he died in 1567 and was buried at Barroughby, and by his will dated 1st Jan. 1568 (and proved 16th May following), he left the lease of Garstang manor to his servant William Saville, who, on 2nd April 1574, assigned his interest in the lease to William Holden of Garstang, and gave a bond of 200 marks for performances of certain covenants named in the will. On 16 Oct. 1574, John Rigmayden of Wedacre, Esq., purchased the lease of the manor, and dying in 1587 it descended to his son and heir, Walter Rigmayden, whose administrators, 10 Feb. 1602, sold it to Sir Thomas Gérard of Gérard, Bromley, in the county of Stafford, Knight, who made an agreement with the tenants for the abolition of certain ancient customs of paying fines at the death of the lord or tenant. Sir Thomas Gérard (afterward Lord Gérard) died 6th October 1617, and by a codicil in his will devised all his property not mentioned in the body of the will (Garstang not being so mentioned) to the payment of his debts, &c., and the residue to his younger sons John and William, appointing as his <sup>37</sup> The Savoy Hospital in London was founded by King Henry VII, and called the Hospital of St. John the Baptist, it consisted of a master and four brethren who were priests in holy orders, it was dissolved in 1553 and refounded by Queen Mary. The Savoy for a long time previously had been part of the Duchy possessions.

executors Alexander Standish and Richard Green of Garstang, the former of whom dying shortly afterwards, the executorship of the will was left to Richard Green, who, in 1624 (17 Jan.), received from John and William Gerard a full release and discharge.<sup>40</sup>

The manor afterwards passed to Digby, fifth Baron Gerard, whose only daughter and heiress, Elizabeth, married James, Earl of Arran, the fourth Duke of Hamilton and first Duke of Brandon, who was killed in a duel with Lord Mohun, which took place in Hyde Park, London, on the 15 Nov. 1712.<sup>41</sup> This meeting must have been of a most determined character, as both the combatants were killed; the Duke of Hamilton was wounded in three places, one of which was a sword cut on the left breast "2 inches broad and about eight inches deep," whilst Lord Mohun had a wound on the right side "penetrating obliquely the whole body and coming out on the left above his hip," and the "great artery in the right groin was cut." A coroner's inquest was held on the bodies, and a verdict of wilful murder was recorded against the principals and their seconds.<sup>42</sup>

In 1738 the lease of the manor expired, and thus it would again fall to the crown; and George II., by Letters Patent, under the seal of his court of exchequer, dated 3 Feb. 1742, demised, granted, and to farm let, to William Hall of the Middle Temple, Esq., all "that the manor of Garstang, with the rights, members and appurtenances, together with all Lands, Tenements, Meadows, Pastures, Feedings, Rents, Reversions, Services and Hereditaments to the said manor belonging; and also all that messuage, &c., in Newbiggine in Lonsdale" (see p. 1) to hold for a term of thirty-one years from "the Feast of St. Michael the Archangel, which was in the year 1737."

<sup>42</sup> General Macartney, one of the seconds, in 1716 surrendered himself to take his trial at the court of King's Bench, and was acquitted of "murder," but found guilty of manslaughter.

By indenture dated 16 August 1742, the Hon. Edward Walpole, Esq., became entitled to manor, &c., for the remainder of the term, and upon his surrendering the Letters Patent and the said premises to the king, the same were re-conveyed to him for a term of thirty-one years from the 21 Oct. 1751, at a yearly rent of 10*l.* 8*s.*

A representation was, however, made to the king that Garstang being a "market town and situate on the common high road from London to the west of Scotland, the improvement of the said town would be of public utility and greatly tend to the encouragement and increase of trade and manufactures in and about the said town, and also to the ease and benefit of the inhabitants of the eastward part of that populous county, who cannot so conveniently repair to any other market; but the said Edward Walpole being only possessed of the premises for the remainder of the term is discouraged from attempting to make such improvements." Accordingly an Act of Parliament was passed which enabled the king to<sup>43</sup> convey the manor, &c., in fee, to the said Edward Walpole, through whose daughter it descended to the present owner, the Rev. W. A. Walpole-Keppel, B.A., rector of Haynford in Norfolk.

A Court Baron<sup>44</sup> was formerly held on behalf of the lord of the manor twice a year, but it is now only held once a year, when the following officers are elected: a constable, assessors, house lookers, affeerers,<sup>45</sup> engine masters, fence lookers and pindar (see Nether Wyersdale, post).

<sup>45</sup> Affeerers (from the French affier to affirm) are officers appointed to moderate the amercements in Courts Baron. It is their duty to declare on the amount they think the offender should pay.

The following is a copy of the Charge to the Jury :

Gentlemen of the Jury the Intent of a Court Baron. Is in the first place to set ease and quietness betwixt Lord and Lord if any difference arises touching their boundaries.

In the second place for setting ease and quietness between Lord and Tenants. And lastly between Tenant and Tenant, Neighbour and Neighbour, and that one of them should not wrong another, but that the person wronged if the value be under 40/- should here have a speedy remedy. And such small Trespasses and Offences are here punishable by Amercements and Relief given in a speedy way.

And first You are to Enquire if all the Suitors to this Court do appear to do their Services to the Lords Court, or if any one that owes Suit and Service to the Lords Court, and withdraws the Same, or neglects to Repair the Lords Housing they are here presentable for by his Steward and by You he is to have his Rights preserved.

If any of the Lords Tenants cut down without his License any Timber or other Trees, it is waste and presentable.

If any Suitor makes Pits in the highways or private neighbourhood ways or has drained or stopped any waters or ditches, or diverted them into a wrong course.

Or have Encroached upon the Lords wastes without Licence.

Or suffer Hogs to go out unyoked or unringed to the annoyance of their neighbours or if any ditches want scouring or Hedges cutting or falling betwixt neighbour and neighbour whereby any person's land is overflowed with water or otherwise damaged.

These and such like offences are here presentable, and you are diligently to enquire of these offences and such like as you yourselves know to be here presentable.

THE TOWNSHIPS OF GARSTANG.

BARNACRE-WITH-BONDS

cannot boast any great antiquity, but was doubtless formerly held as part of the manor of Nether Wyresdale. Baines<sup>46</sup> erroneously states that this township was part of the possession of Sir James Laurence, but neither in the Inq. Post Mort. held on the death of Robert Laurence, 28 Hen. VI (1449-50), or Sir James Laurence in 1501, is it once named.

According to an Inquis. taken at Lancaster, 11th Sep. 1516, upon the death of Margaret, the wife of Nicholas Rigmayden, it appears that certain lands and tenements in "Berneacre" were parcel of the manor of "Wodeacre," and were the inheritance of Thomas Rigmayden (grandson of the said Margaret), and held of the Queen as of her Duchy of Lancaster,<sup>47</sup> and in the reign of Phillip and Mary (1554-1558) John Rigmayden lodged a Bill of Complaint in the Duchy Court, to the effect that certain lands in Barnacre, forming part of the manor of Wodacre, ought of right to have descended to him from his father Thomas Rigmayden deceased, but that one John Rigmayden of Newhall in Barnacre had entered upon the premises, and held possession of the deeds, &c. The defendant denies having the deeds and pleads that the complainant had conveyed the property to John Rigmayden, his (defendant's) father, for a term of years yet to come.<sup>48</sup>

In 35 Eliz. (1592-3) Sir Gilbert Gerard, Attorney General, died, seised of lands and tenements in Barnacre,<sup>49</sup> which descended to the Duke of Hamilton, who sold Bonds in 1834 and Barnacre in 1853 to Mr. Bashell.

In this township are the very ancient manors of Byreworth and Wedicar or Woodacre, which will be noticed hereafter, as well as "Dimples," the ancient seat of the Plesingtons (see chapter vii).

In Barnacre are the ruins of Greenhalgh castle, which was erected in 1490, under a license granted by the king to Thomas, Earl of Derby, by which he and his heirs were empowered to erect in Greenhalgh a building or buildings, with stone or other materials, and to embattle, turrellate, crenelate, machicollate, or otherwise fortify the same; authority being at the same time given to enclose a park, and to have in it free warren and chase. Any person hunting in the park without the Earl's consent was made liable to a penalty of 20*l*.<sup>50</sup>

Camden states that "Greenhaugh castle" was built by the Earl of Derby "whilst he was under apprehension of danger from certain of the nobility of this county who had been outlawed, and whose estates had been given by Henry the Seventh; for they made several attempts upon him, and many inroads into his grounds, till at last these feuds were extinguished by the temper and prudence of that excellent person."<sup>51</sup>

During the civil wars the castle was garrisoned by James, Earl of Derby, on behalf of the king, and was placed under the governorship of Christopher Anderton, the son of Sir Christopher Anderton of Lostock.<sup>52</sup> In August 1644, Sir John Meldrum, being at Preston with his parliamentary army, gave orders to Colonel Dodding to march his regiment "home and to provide himselfe to beleaguer Grenall castle then possessed by the cavaliers"; this siege was not brought to a successful issue until the year following, as in May 1645 Lathom house and "Greenhaugh castle" are mentioned as amongst the strongholds, north of the Trent, still holding out.<sup>53</sup>

The following account of the siege is from A Discourse of the War in Lancashire.<sup>54</sup>

"Colonell Dodding with his Regiment with Major Joseph Rigbies companies laid close siege to Grenall Castle keeping their maine Guard at Garstang towne, Into which were gotten many desperat Papists. Their Governour was one Mr. Anderton. They vexed the country thereabouts extreamly, fetching in the night time many honest men from their houses, making a commoditie of it. They sallied out oft upon the Leaguers and killed some. They stood it out stoutly all that winter (1644-5). The Country was put to extraordinary charges in maintayning the Northern men, who made a prey without pittie such abundance of Provision they weekly destroyed. The Leaguers had thought to have undermined the Castle and have blown it up with gunpowder, and great cost was spent about it to pioners but to no effect. The ground was so sandy it would not stand. At last this Anderton died,<sup>55</sup> and them there within being thereby discouradged, they were glad to come to a composition to deliver it vp upon conditions—which were that they might go to their own houses and be safe. It was ordered that the Castle should be demolished and made untenable, and all the timber taken out of it and sold, which was done. And soe it lyes ruinated. It was very stronge, and builded so that it was tho<sup>t</sup> Impregnable with any ordenance whatsoever, having but one dore to it, and the Walls of an exceeding thickness and very well secured together.”

In 1772, Pennent, in making his northern tour, notes a single tower, “the poor remains of Greenhaugh Castle,” of which in 1780 a drawing was made by Roger Dewhurst of Halliwell, Esq., and which was engraved in Baines’ History of Lancashire. Of this single tower very little is now left; as the castle originally stood it was of rectangular form, with a tower at each angle, the interval between the walls was fourteen yards on one side and sixteen on the other, the whole being surrounded by a moat.<sup>56</sup> It is now part of the estate of Lord Bective.

BILSBORROW.<sup>57</sup>

There is little reason to doubt that this is the “Bileuuarde” of the Domesday Survey, which had then two carucates of land under cultivation, or at all events not lying absolutely "waste." Alan de Singleton, who was living in the reign of King John, died seised of two bovates of land in "Billisburghere"; his Inq. Post. Mort. was held 29 Hen. III (1244-5), which descended to Joan his daughter (and heiress to her brother Thomas de Singleton), who married Thomas Banastre,<sup>58</sup> whose son William died 17 Edw. II (1323-4) seised of half the "vill of Billeworth," and in "Billisburgh" a messuage, twenty acres of land, and a mill. Adam Banastre, his son and heir, is described as holding the manor of Billisburgh by service and a rent of 2s.

Adam Banastre, Knight, died about the year 1348, and his son and heir, Thomas Banastre, who was knighted in 1360, held "Billesbourghe," which is reckoned as "half a carve of land," by service of the 20th part of a knight's fee, paying yearly 2s. at the four terms.<sup>59</sup>

In 14 Edw. III (1340-41) the assessor appointed to value for the Nonarum Inquisitiones rated "Billesburgh" at xx<sup>s</sup>.

In 20 Edw. I (1291-92) the Prior of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem was cited to shew by what right he claimed the judging of thieves, assize of bread and ale, &c., in (amongst other places in Amounderness) "Billsburgh." The abbot of Cocker-sand was also called upon to answer the same question.<sup>60</sup>

In 25 Edw. I (1296-97) Edmund, brother of Hen. I and Earl of Lancaster, amongst his immense possessions in the county, held in this township lands of the annual value of 2s.<sup>61</sup>

In 15 Edw. I (1286-87) Roger de Byllesburgh appeared at Lancaster at a forest assize as one of the "viridar," or verdurer,<sup>62</sup> and early in the 14th century Alan, the son of Richard, and John de Billesburgh held in this township two bovates of land from the king, by payment of 6d. annually,<sup>63</sup> and a John, son of Richard de Billesburgh had granted to him (about the same period) an acre of land by the Abbot of Cockersand.<sup>64</sup> Another early owner of the soil here was Elena, wife of Roger Brockholes, who died 8th December 31 Edw. III (1357).<sup>65</sup>

Richard de Balderston held the manor of Billesburgh from the Prior of St. John of Jerusalem by service of 12*d.* per annum, and died seised of it 20th December 1456, his son and heir being William de Balderston, then being aged 29.<sup>66</sup>

Richard Barton of Barton Row, who died 25th October 1572, held three houses and forty acres of land in this township in socage from Henry Cottam, gentleman, and the yearly clear value thereof was 6*s.*<sup>67</sup> (Cottam family see chapter vii). Bilsborrow is now in the hands of many proprietors.

CABUS.

This township is probably not of any great antiquity, as we find no mention of it (by this name) earlier than 8 Hen. VIII (1516), when Margaret, the wife of Nicholas Rigmayden, died seised of certain lands here. The Barony Court of Nether Wyresdale has for a long period been held in Cabus.

CATTERALL.

In the Domesday Survey this is described as Cathrehala, and consisted of two carucates of land, then in cultivation.

The first William de Lancastre by deed without date gave to Bernard Fily-Rufus two carucates of land in Halcath (afterwards called Haworth) and Catterall, which Richard Fitz-Swane, and Beatrice Fitz-Robert, and Michael Atheleston held by knight's service.<sup>68</sup> Baines quotes a deed, also without date, but presumed to have been made in the time of King John (1199-1216), by which Robert the son of Bernard grants "To the hospital of St. John of Jerusalem the manse of St. John the Baptist super

And all the lands which are comprised between these divisions, and six acres in the township of Catteral-upon-Keldit,<sup>69</sup> which were Alan Fitz-Ralph's, and my mill at Catterall, besides two acres of land near the house which was Richard de Ricihale, in Wetre, to make a market."<sup>70</sup>

Amongst the early possessors of the soil here were the Catteralls and the Rigmaydens.

In the early part of the thirteenth century Richard de Catterall held lands in "Katerale" and "Hawach" or "Howatte," and in 1397 Adam de Catterall held a third of the manor from Thomas Rigmayden.

"Hawach, Hawet, Hulcath," and "Howatte," are names applied to the same place in Catterall, and gave the name to "Haworth Milne," which is described in deed, dated 21st Oct. 1637. (Catterall family, see chapter vii).

Marmaduke de Twenge, who died before the year 1318, held in Catterall certain lands in capite from the king, which he granted to his son, William de Twenge, for the term of his life.<sup>71</sup>

In November 1415 (on the Sunday next before the Feast of St. Thomas the Martyr), Sir Richard de Hoghton, Knt., died seised of four houses and twenty acres of land and meadow in "Hawet," in the "vil de Catterall," which he held of the king, by service and payment of 2s. 6d. annually to the prior of St. John of Jerusalem.<sup>72</sup>

<sup>70</sup> Baines gives no clue to where the deed is deposited. If this chapel existed it was doubtless erected for use of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, which had considerable possessions in Garstang.

A portion of Caterall is detached and lies a few miles to the north, between Bleasdale and Barnacre.

(Catterall hall, see chapter vii).

CLAUGHTON.

This is the "Clactune" of Domesday Book, see p. 4, and which is now pronounced Clighton. The "vil de Claghton," in which were "Heyham" and "Duncunberg" (now known as Dandy Birks), is mentioned in the deed of confirmation of the endowment of Garstang church, which was executed about the year 1241, and by which the tithes of Claughton were given to the Vicar of Garstang (see chapter ii).

Ralph de Bethum in 39 Hen. III (1254-55), was seised of lands in Claghton,<sup>73</sup> which descended to another of the same name (probably his son), who, according to the Survey of 1320-46,<sup>74</sup> held with Thomas, son of Gilbert de Singleton, two carves of land here of the heir of Alice, Countess of Lincoln, by service of a fifth part of a knight's fee, paying yearly for Castleward, of Lancaster, 2s. 2d.

In 20 Edw. I (1291-92) the Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem and the Abbot of Cockersand were cited to show by what authority they claimed<sup>75</sup> the judging of thieves, assize of bread and ale, &c., in Claughton. Edmund, the Earl of Lancaster, had lands here of annual value of 2s. 2d.

This township gave its name to a family which at a very early period were lords of the soil. In 15 Edw. I (1286) William de Clachton was one of the viriders in a forest assize held at Lancaster, and at about the same period Roger de Claghton is a witness to a deed conveying lands in Claghton from John, son of Gilbert de Mireschough, to Richard son of Walter, son of Ranuld de Bosco, the other witnesses being Henry le Boteler, John de Catterall, John le Tayleur, Robert de la Gosenargh, and Gilbert de Wythington.<sup>76</sup> Another deed without date (but executed before the end of the thirteenth century) conveys from ——— de Claghton to Roger de Claghton, a grant of a rent-charge on a certain field in Claghton; this is witnessed by Roger de Billesburgh, John de Stamford, and others.<sup>77</sup> About the same date John de Plesyngton made a grant of land here to Gilbert, son of Richard, son of Walter de Claghton,<sup>78</sup> and in 12 Edw. I (1283–84) John, another son of Richard, the son of Walter de Claghton, granted to his son Robert all his lands and tenements in Claghton.<sup>79</sup> Amongst the witnesses to this deed is John de Mirscogh, who in 18 Edw. I (1290) conveyed to John, son of Thomas, son of Richard de Claghton all his premises in Claghton, which he had of the gift of John de Mirscogh. This is witnessed by John le Tailler de Kirkland.<sup>80</sup>

In 18 Edw. II (1324–25) by deed dated at Garstang church, John, the son of Thomas de Stamford, granted certain hereditaments in the “vill de Claghton” to William de Tatham.<sup>81</sup>

In 28 Hen. VI (1449) one of the jurors summoned by the escheator to meet at Garstang on the death of Robert Laurence was John Claghton.

In 1340–41 the sum of two marks was returned by the assessors of the “Nonarum Inquisitiones” as the amount to which the township was to be taxed.

By deed dated at Garstang, the Friday next after the Feast of St. Mary Magdalen, 17 Edw. III (1343), Robert de Plesington granted to Edmund de Mirescogh and his heirs, all his lands in Claghton in Amounderness called “le Brustarecroft,” and “le Brustaremeadow.” This deed is witnessed by Robert de Culwenn, William de Hornby, John de Tayllour, Richard de Catterall, and John de Cotum de Billesburgh.<sup>82</sup>

In 39 Edw. III (1365–66) Cecile, the wife of Roger de Myreschogh, leased to Laurence de Myreschogh, chaplain, for thirty-two years, all her lands in the “vill de Claghton.”<sup>83</sup>

By deed dated Wednesday after the Feast of St. John the Baptist, 21 Rich. II (1397), John de Lethum, chaplain, granted to Alan, the son of William de Warberton and Margaret his wife, who was the daughter of John de Botyller de Kirkeland, all his lands, &c. in "Claghton."

Of a place in Claughton called "Hecham" or "Hegham" we find several notices in deeds of the thirteenth century, and of a family bearing the same name. By deed without date, Alice de Heham granted to Walter de Tatham the third part of a field called Henrifield in Hecham; and early in the thirteenth century Candeley, son of Matilda, granted premises in Hecham to his son William—the witnesses being William de Bollot and Paulinus de Gairstang<sup>85</sup> (the latter was living in 1226–7).

In 16 Edw. II (1322–23), William de Southworth conveyed his premises in Higham in Claughton to Elizabeth his daughter.<sup>86</sup>

John de B'desey, by deed dated (Monday at the end of Easter) 29 Edw. III (1355), granted all his lands in Hegham in the "vil de Claghton" to Robert de Haldelegh<sup>87</sup>; and in 22 Ric. II (1398–9) William de Beselegh let to John de Inskip his lands in Hegham in Claghton in Amounderness at a rent of 28*d.* per annum.<sup>88</sup>

Two centuries later Jane Beesley died seised of lands here.<sup>89</sup> The connection of the Brockholes family with this township will be referred to more particularly in chapter vii. As early as 32 Edw. III (1358–9) Elena, the wife of Roger Brockholes, held lands here; and in 1421–22,<sup>90</sup> the then representative of the family, John de Brockholes, is described as "of Claughton."<sup>91</sup> is partly in Cockerham and partly in Garstang; there is little to record concerning it except that it formerly was part of the constablewick of Garstang, and still owes suit to the manor of Nether Wyresdale. We have not met with the name prior to 10 James I (1612-13) when a John Allen was declared to have died seised of lands in Cleveley.<sup>99</sup> like the last township, is partly in Cockerham and partly in Garstang, and its northern extremity extends into the hundred of Lonsdale. At the time of the Domesday Survey only about 100 acres were named in "Fortune."

FORTON,

Before the foundation of Cockersand Abbey, the whole of Forton belonged to Warin de Lancastre, who in the early part of the reign of Hen. II (probably about 1160) granted to Aldred, the son of Hugo, half of "fforton," at a rental of 111s. per annum. Some forty years later Henry de Lancastre,<sup>100</sup> the son of Warin, living in 1199, granted certain lands here to the Abbot of Cockersand; and about the same time Adam de Lee (who was one of the house of Lancastre) released what he held from Aldred de Forton, in half of Forton, to the abbey. Richard, the son of Huan de fforton, Randulf de fforton, William de Nateby, John de Slathwaiteued, Adam the son of Swain de Kayballes, Jordanus Gosnar, and Thomas de Likebert, all conveyed lands, messuages, &c., in Forton, to the abbey, by deeds without date, but which doubtless were executed in the thirteenth century.<sup>101</sup> The monastery was further enriched by the following grants, viz.: from Jordan Gosnar four acres of land and a house in Forton, in 1333; from Henry Corlews, the son of Robert Corlews, by deed dated 1st April 6 Hen. V (1418) all his lands, messuages, and tenements in fforton, in the "vill" of Gairestang; from John Calfson, 2nd Jan. 7 Edw. IV (1468) half an acre of land called Slathuaytehed in fforton, in Garstang; from John Brekedaunte, 22nd Feb. 19 Hen. VII, 1504 (see p. 13), a close of land in fforton called the "ffall," in the holding of James Dawson.<sup>102</sup>

The above-named grants, and the rental of Cockersand (see p. 13), furnish conclusive evidence that towards the close of the fifteenth century nearly the whole of the township belonged to the abbey. On 31st May 1490, Sir James Lawrence, Knt., died seized of lands in the manor of Forton, which descended to his son Thomas Lawrence.<sup>103</sup>

<sup>100</sup> Henry, the son of Warin de Lancastre, also granted certain rights of "pannage" in the "vill de fforton" to the Abbot of Furness (Dodsworth MSS. 90, fol. 107).

<sup>101</sup> Deeds were ordered by statute to be dated about 1290-1300.

Upon the dissolution of the monasteries, the manor of Forton was granted by Hen. VIII (by letters patent) to Thomas Holt of Gristlehurst,<sup>104</sup> who was knighted by Edward Earl of Hertford, in Scotland, 36 Hen. VIII (1544-45) and whose descendants held it for four generations. Theophilus Holt, the son of Thomas Holt (who was grandson of Sir Thomas) died seised of it; his Inq. Post Mort. was held 4 Chas. I (1628-29). In 19 Chas. I (1643-44) Richard Newsham of Forton, gentleman, John Corles of Ellell, yeoman, John ffox and James Clifton of Forton, yeomen, purchased the manor of Forton, with all its appurtenances, "for the use of themselves and the rest of the tenants" of the said manor, and they subsequently released to each tenant his share on his paying his proportion of the purchase money, thus by deed dated 6th August 1667 they conveyed to William Webster of Forton, yeoman, for the consideration of 8*l.* 15*s.* 0*d.* "all that messuage and tenement in fforton consisting of three acres of land" then in their possession, and for which the ancient rent was 6*s.* a year, excepting thereout one acre of land called "ffarsid," which William Webster had conveyed to Randle Taylor of Stodday, yeoman.<sup>105</sup> In the eighteenth century Forton Hall was held by Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Whitehead of Claughton, who executed a deed of gift conveying it to her younger son Thomas, whose decendants still hold it (see chapter vii).

HOLLETH.

A part of this very small township is in the parish of Cockerham; the whole owes suit to the manor of Nether Wyresdale.

In 1516 "Hollock" is described as part of the manor of "Wodeacre" and was held by Thomas Rigmayden of the queen as of her Duchy of Lancaster,<sup>106</sup> and it was retained by his descendant, Walter Rigmayden, in 1588, and subsequently passed to one of the Dukes of Hamilton. The principal land owner now is Richard Cardwell Gardner, Esq.

<sup>105</sup> Deed in possession of Mr. Whitehead of Forton. The other tenants were treated with in the same manner.

KIRKLAND (Churchtown).<sup>107</sup>

In this township stands the parish church which is a mile and a half from the town of Garstang. The cluster of houses near the church is known as Garstang Churchtown.

Kirkland doubtless derives its name, either from its having been the original endowment of the church, or from the church being erected there; if the former, then at an early date some portion of the estate must have been alienated, as in the confirmation deed of 1241 (see chapter ii) provision is only made for the vicar of Garstang to have free right of common in the woodlands of Kirkland, with a moiety of the tithes of pannage of Kirkland, an oxgang of land and two houses; the remainder of the township being held by William de Lancastre, who, by deed without date, but which must have been executed in or near the year 1242, gave certain of his lands in Kirkland to Robert de Tayllour and his heirs for ever; a year or two afterwards he granted to the same certain other lands there, with the right of fishing in the waters, great and small, in his domain of Wyresdale.<sup>108</sup>

William de Lancastre, however, at the time of his death (Inq. Post Mort. dated 31 Hen. III, 1246-7) was seised of the manor of "Kirkelond."

By grant dated at Garstang, on Sunday next before the Nativity of our Lord, 13 Edw. I (1284), William, the son of Alan <sup>107</sup> Toward the commencement of last century, locally Kirkland appears to have been called Churchtown, which name it still remains; it was designated Kirktown as early as 1600 (see chapter iv, Vicar Aynesworth); and in 1712 we find "Garstang Kirktown" (see chapter iv, Vicar H. Richmond).

de Cathirton, quit claimed John, the son of Robert de Tayllour de Kirkland, and his heirs, of the right of pannage for forty pigs in the woods of Kirkland.<sup>109</sup>

Between 1277 and 1285, the abbot of Cockersand entered into an agreement with one John de Kirkland respecting an acre of land and dead wood in the wood of Kirkland.<sup>110</sup>

By deed dated at Garstang the day after the Feast of the Annunciation of our Lady, 23 Edw. III (26 March 1349), William Balderston, the parson of St. Michael's-on-the-Wyre, John de Plesington and John de Brockholes, conveyed to John le Tailleur and Margaret his wife, the manor of Kirkland with its appurtenances, which, after their decease, was to descend to William de Kirkland and his heirs male, failing such issue, then to John, his brother, with remainder to his other brothers, Nicholas, Laurence and Robert, and in case none of them had male issue, then to revert to the right heirs of the said William de Kirkland.<sup>111</sup> This deed was witnessed by Richard de Kighley, Nicholas le Boteler, John de Barton, Knt., Robert de Plessington, John de Rigmayden, Richard de Caterhall, and others.

Notwithstanding the above named grants the lords of the fee were the descendants of William de Lancastre; and William de Coucy, second son of Ingelram de Gynes (see p. 6), and Robert de Coucy de Gynes held possession in 20 Edw. III (1346-7).<sup>112</sup>

The Inq. Post Mort. taken at Preston, on the Saturday next after the Feast of St. John before the Latin Gate, 36 Edw. III (1362), upon the death of William de Kirkland furnishes the following conclusive evidence on the point.

William de Kirkland died on Wednesday, the Feast of the Conception of the Blessed Virgin, 35 Edw. III (8th Dec. 1361), and then held only one messuage and sixty acres of land in Kirke-land, of the annual value of 60s.; all the rest of his lands here he had assigned to Roger de Gosenargh, William de Eccleston, and Ralph de Knoll, chaplains, to the intent that after his decease they should grant the same to Margaret his wife for the term of her life, and after her death to Alice his daughter, and her heirs male; failing such issue then to her sister Joan, with remainder in like manner to her younger sister Katherine; but in default of male issue then to the heirs of him the said William de Kirkland.<sup>113</sup> The lands so assigned were held of the moiety of the manor of Wyresdale, which formerly belonged to William de Coucy, and were then in the holding of John de Coupeland, by commission of the king, by service of 1*d.* or half pound of cummin in socage yearly for all services.<sup>114</sup>

An Inq. Post Mort. upon the death of Joan the wife of John de Coupeland, Knt., was taken at Lancaster, on Monday, the morrow of the Holy Trinity, 49 Edw. III (1375), from which it appears that John le Botiller and Alice his wife held the manor of Kirkland of Joan de Coupeland as of the hereditaments of the said Alice, by homage and fealty, and the service of 10s. per annum.<sup>115</sup> It may be assumed that John de Botiller had married Alice the daughter of William de Kirkland, and that subsequently the manor became the freehold of the Butlers of Kirkland, whose descendants still hold it. (See Kirkland Hall, chapter vii).

A branch of the Kirkland family was settled in Derbyshire for several centuries, and bore arms.<sup>116</sup>

<sup>113</sup> William de Kirkland was possibly the third son of Sir William de Kirkland of Bampton, in the county of Derby, Knt., whose ancestors, for several generations, were lords of Kirkland in Cumberland, but proof is wanted. Sir William married Matilda, sister to Alan de Coupland, and daughter of Richard de Coupland (MSS. in possession of Walter Kirkland, Esq., of Eastbourne).

NATEBY.

Notwithstanding the Danish termination "bye" or "bi" signifying a dwelling place or habitation, we find no trace of this township until the time of William de Lancastre, who, in the reign of Henry III, granted to Hugo Northman and his heirs, one bovate of land<sup>117</sup> in Natebi, for which he was to pay annually 2*d.* at Easter and 2*d.* at the Feast of St. Michael. Amongst the witnesses to this deed was Henry le Facuner.<sup>118</sup>

Nateby was at this time, and for some period afterwards, held in fee by the Lancastre family as part of the manor of Wyres-

dale ; and before the close of the thirteenth century, a great part of it was held by Ralph de Nateby and Lawrence Travers, who probably paid rent or service to the chief lord. According to the evidence supposed to have been furnished by William Travers of Nateby, who lived 1563-1627, it appears that, by a deed (then existing and marked D, but without date), Ralph Nateby of Nateby had issue two sons, Thomas and William, the elder of whom (Thomas) being about to enter "into religion," gave all his lands in Nateby and Garstang to his younger brother ; about the same time, Lawrence, the son and heir of Lawrence Travers of Tulket, armiger (who was warden of the hospital of the Blessed Mary Magdalen, at Preston), also being wishful to "enter into a religious lyfe" did give "all his tytill in y<sup>e</sup> manor of Nateby" to Thomas Travers, his younger brother, and to Isabel, the daughter of William, the son of Ralph de Nateby, and for the "better assurance of y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> manor and lands of Nateby a fyne was acknowledged att Lancaster by Nateby to Travers," 20 Edward I (1291-92).<sup>119</sup> It is scarcely necessary to add that Thomas Travers and Isabel Nateby were afterwards married, and from them descended the Travers of Nateby (see Nateby Hall, chapter vii), who lived here until the middle of the seventeenth century.

In 20 Edward III (1346-47) John de Kirkland, John de Plesington, and Richard de Caterall, state upon oath<sup>120</sup> that John de Plesington held of William de Coucy and Robert Coucy de Guynes (see chapter vii) a bovat of land in Magna Nateby, by knight's service, and that Robert de Plesington and Robert de Bower held of the same, and by the same service, a bovat of land in Magna Nateby.

On 23 May 1349, John Travers, the son of Thomas Travers of Nateby, married Alice, the daughter of Robert Plesington, who probably had for her dower the land just referred to (Bower House, see chapter vii).

PILLING.

The earliest mention of Pilling is contained in a grant from Theobald Walter, made between the years 1193 and 1199, of which the following is a translation : <sup>121</sup>

"Know all men present and future that J. T. Walt. for the divine protection and for the love of the Blessed Mary for the Salvation of the soul of King Henry [II] and of the soul of King Richard his son and the soul of John Earl of Moreton [afterwards King John] and of the soul of Randle de Glanvile dear to us and for the salvation of the soul H. [Hubert]<sup>122</sup> Archbishop of Canterbury our Brother and of Herveus Walter my Father and of Matild' Walter my mother and for the salvation of my soul and [of the souls] of all my friends and benefactors and ancessors and successors,—have given and conceded and by this my charter have confirmed all my Haye of Pylin to God and the blessed Mary and the Abbot and Canons of the Præmonstracensian order there serving God, in clear and perpetual Alms for the building<sup>123</sup> of one abbacy of that order. Wherefore I will and order that the aforesaid abbot and canons there serving God have and hold the said Haye freely with all its appurtenances and the messuages pertaining to it free and quit and absolved from all secular exaction and service from payment of foresters and from all other cause as freely as alms can be given in a free Haye, in wood or plain, in meadow and pasture in waters in pools in fish-ponds in mills in fisheries in saltpits in marshes both moist and dry and in all liberties and easements of the aforesaid Haye, both those which now are and those which may thence arise

The Haye or Haix was a name applied to portions of the forest which were enclosed with a hedge, and into which beasts were driven, either for capture or slaughter; in some parts of England, at the present day, the word *hay*e is used to express a fence or hedge (see Nether Wyresdale).

From this grant of Theobald Walter's it appears that the Abbey of Cockersand was not then built, although license to build it had been obtained from the mother house at Leicester some years before, and been confirmed by Pope Clement in 1190,<sup>124</sup> who, at the same time, ordered that it should be called the Monastery of St. Mary of the Præmonstratensian Order of Cockersand.

In the face of this, it is not quite clear what is meant by the allusions to the "Abbot and Canons there (i.e., in Pilling) serving God," unless we suppose that prior to the erection of the monastery there was a temporary establishment at Pilling.

In 2 John (1200-01) the pasture of Pilling was confirmed to the abbey,<sup>125</sup> yet in 1292 Edward I. called upon the Abbot of Cockersand to show by what right he claimed the judging of thieves, assize of bread and ale, &c., in Pilling, when evidence upon oath was given which satisfied the jury that the grant made by King John was a valid one, and that it included all the wastes of Pilling, and that the abbatial lands in Pilling were exempt from all fines and amercements.<sup>126</sup>

In the time of Henry III the forests of Lancaster were given to Edmund Crouchback, Earl of Lancaster; and in 15 Edward I a forest assize was held at Lancaster on the Monday after Easter day (1286), when Adam de Carlton, Roger the son of Roger of middle Routheclyve, and Richard his brother, were charged with having killed three stags in the moss of Pelyn, which was part of the royal forest<sup>127</sup> (of Wyresdale). At this assize, amongst the

"Viridors" or "Verdurers"—who were officials sworn to receive and enrol all presentments of trespasses against the forest laws—were the following members of Garstang families, viz., Adam de Brokholes heir of Roger de Brokholes, Thomas Travers, John Genty, Roger de Wedacre, John de Ryggemayden, Roger de Bylesbury, William de Clachton.

From shortly after this time to the dissolution of the monasteries a large portion of Pilling belonged to the abbey (see Pilling Hall, chapter vii). A small part of the township belongs to Cockerham parish. Formerly a large track of land in the western part of the district consisted of peaty land, called Pilling Moss (see page 2), which furnished turf in such quantities as to give rise to the saying, "as inexhaustible as Pilling Moss," much of this has now become cultivated land, but the dike-like fences characterise the township, as they did when the ballad of Flodden Field was written

"They wth y<sup>e</sup> Standley howte forthe went From Pemberton and Pillin Dikes" <sup>128</sup>

The following description of the sudden uplifting of Pilling Moss is from the pen of the Rev. Legh Richmond, at that time vicar of Garstang.

A copy of a letter from the Rev. Mr. Richmond, to — Leigh, Esq., of Adlington, in the county of Chester, concerning a moving moss in the neighbourhood of Church-Town, in Lancashire. Communicated by Edward Milward, M.D., F.R.S. [read February 28, 1744-45].

"Dear Sir

As you will probably hear that this neighbourhood is greatly alarmed with what they call a miracle, it may not be unacceptable if I give you the History of it.

"On Saturday the 26th of Jan. 1744-5 a part of Pilling Moss lying between Hescomb Houses and an estate of Mr. Butler's called Wild

Bear was observed to rise to a surprising height; after a short time it sunk as much below the Level and moved slowly toward the South side, in half an hour's time it cover'd 20 acres of land. The improved land adjoining that part of the Moss which moves is a concave circle containing near 100 acres which is well nigh fill'd up with Moss and Water. In some parts it is thought to be five yards deep. A family is driven out of their dwelling house which is quite surrounded and the fabric tumbling down. Mr. Butler, Whitehead and Stephen White are the first sufferers by this uncommon accident. An intense frost retards the regress of the Moss to day, but I fear it will yet spoil a great deal of land. The part of the Moss which is sunk like the bed of a River runs North and South, is above a mile in length and near half a mile in breadth so that I apprehend there will be a continued current to the South. A man was going over the Moss when it began to move, as he was going Eastward he perceived to his great astonishment that the ground under his feet moved Southward.

"He turned back speedily and had the good fortune to escape being swallowed up. I have been at the Moss to make observations every day this week.

"If any thing happens worth your knowledge you may depend upon hearing from

Sir
Your very affectionate
Humble Servant
L. Richmond."

WINMARLEIGH.

A Gregorie de Winnerlie or de Wimerlegh, in the reign of Henry III, is said to have granted to the Abbot of Cockersand a portion of his lands near the lands of William Fitz Hervy, mentioning amongst other boundaries an oak signed with a cross.<sup>129</sup>

<sup>129</sup> Baines gives as his authority for this Regist. S. Maria de Lanc. MSS., fo. 3 bis; but Harl. MSS., 3764, which contains this register, furnishes no such record, but it does mention the final agreement (also quoted by Baines) between Gregory de Wim'legh and Geoffrey, the Prior of Lancaster, concerning six bovates of land in Hull.

A deed without date, but of the time of William de Lancastre, is witnessed by Gregory de Wynmerleigh and Roger his son, and about the same time appears the name of Hugh de Winmerley.<sup>130</sup> An agreement, made between the Abbot of Cocker-sand and John de Kirkeland, is witnessed by Henry de Lee, High Sheriff of Lancashire, and John de Wynmerley.<sup>131</sup>

In 1343 (17 Edward III) Robert de Plesington received a fine from Thomas le Gentyll, Katherine his wife, and Ranulf their son, for half the manor of Wynmeles,<sup>132</sup> and in 20 Edw. III (1346-47) Thomas le Gentyll died seized of two bovates of land in Wynmerle. By deed dated at Wynmerlegh, on Monday next after the Epiphany, 12 Edward III (1339), Thomas, the son of William de Gentill, gave John de Haverington 129 acres, a waste which he held in Wynmerlegh in the "vil" of Garstange.<sup>133</sup>

In 34 Edward III (1360-61) a fine for a writ of Formeden,<sup>134</sup> concerning the manor of Wynmerley, was issued for Nicholas le Gentill, who was probably the son of Thomas le Gentill.<sup>135</sup>

At this time part of the land of Winmarleigh was held of the manor of Wyresdale, and some of this land was in the possession of William, the son of William le Molyneux (cousin and heir of Richard), whose Inq. Post Mort. was dated 36 Edward III (1362-63); and probably the land of which John de Travers was seized in 36 Edward III (1362-3) was of the same holding.

About the year 1365 the king gave into the custody of James de Pickeringe, Knt., all the lands and tenements of which Sir Thomas de Havrington had died seized (Inq. Post Mort., 38 Edward III) in Winmarlegh, which were not held of the manor of Wyersdale,<sup>136</sup> which lands had descended to him from his father, Sir John de Havrington de Farleton, who held them in right of his wife.<sup>137</sup>

About this time a Roger de Wynmerlegh had half the manor, and Christiana, one of his daughters and heiresses, married Henry de Rowall,<sup>138</sup> and Isabella, the other daughter, it is presumed (the evidence is not of a positive nature), married Henry de Plesington. By deed dated at Winmarleigh, Wednesday next after the Feast of the blessed Mary Magdalen, 3 Hen. VI (1425), Thomas Henryson de Rowall, heir of Christiana, daughter and heiress of Roger de Wynmerleigh, and late wife of Henry de Rowall, gave to Christopher, his brother, half the manor of Wynmerlegh in the "vil" of Garstange,<sup>139</sup> and by another deed dated 1 October 12 Edw. IV (1472), John Rigmayden, the son and heir of John Rigmayden deceased, quit claimed Ralph Radcliff, Hugh Radcliff and Richard Radcliff of all right or title in the whole of the lands and tenements in Wynmerlegh which he had received from Christopher Rowall which were of the inheritance of Henry Rowall, ancestor of Christopher Rowall.<sup>140</sup> A John Rowall had a tenement here from the abbot of Cocker-sand in 1451<sup>141</sup> (see page 10). As before stated, Isabella de Rowall married Henry de Plesington, and Isabella, their daughter and heiress, having married Richard de Radcliffe, the whole manor subsequently passed to that family, and was held by them for many generations, until William Radcliffe<sup>142</sup> died, 1561, without surviving issue, when Winmarleigh passed to his sister Ann, daughter of Thomas Radcliffe, who had married Sir Gilbert Gerard, Knt., who was Attorney-General in 1567 and Master of the Rolls.<sup>143</sup>

The estates then passed in succession to their son Thomas, who afterwards became lord Gerard, to their grandson Gilbert, second lord Gerard, and ultimately to Dutton, third lord Gerard, who had issue by his first wife, lady Mary Fane, daughter of Francis, earl of Westmorland, a son and heir, Charles, fourth lord Gerard; the Winmarleigh property did not, however, pass to him, but to the honourable Elizabeth Gerard, who was the only issue of Dutton lord Gerard, by his second marriage in 1636 (with lady Elizabeth O'Bryan, daughter of Henry earl of Thornond), and who married the honourable William Spencer, third son of William, second baron Spencer, who was living at Ashton hall in 1664. The honourable William Spencer and Elizabeth his wife had issue a son William Spencer, who, by Mary his wife, left issue two sons, John and Charles, and a daughter Elizabeth, who married Robert Hesketh, Esq., of Rufford, and whose only daughter and heiress married, in 1714, Sir Edward Stanley, Bart., afterwards eleventh earl of Derby. William Spencer the younger had also a daughter Alice, who married the Rev. Harry Style, and survived her brothers John and Charles, and was thus the last representative of the Spencer family.

As an illustration of the tenure of land here at this period, we quote the following from an indenture dated 12 October 1668, between "the Hon. William Spencer of Ashton hall, in the county of Lancaster, Esq., and the Hon. Elizabeth his wife on the one part and ffancis Deyes of Cockerham yeoman on the other," which witnesseth that the said William Spencer and Elizabeth his wife have granted and "to farme letten to the said ffances Deyes all that their messuage &c. lying in Winmerleigh called by the name of Townend Tenement," late in the occupation of the said ffancis Deyes, at the yearly rent of 31s. 4d. To have and to hold, &c., for 99 years, if Arthur Deyes, ffancis Deyes, and Robert Deyes, three children of the said ffancis Deyes, if any of them shall happen so long to live, paying in addition to the said rent, after the death of any tenant, their best live beast, in the name of a Herriott, and "also one good rent or boone Cock and 5 rent or boone Henns yearly<sup>144</sup> at the Feast of the Nativity of our Lord God," and also "keeping one Hound or Spaniell," and to do "two days plowing in the time of Corne seeding and four days shereinge or reeping of Corne with an able Reaper in the time of Corne Harvest yearly, and two days harrowing with an able harrowe yearly and also doing suit and service of Court from tyme to tyme to be held of the mannor of Winmerleigh, and also grinding of all the Corne and Grain yearly growing upon the said premises at the Milne of the said William Spencer in Winmerleigh aforesaid."

The Winmarleigh estate was sold in 1743 to pay off lady Derby's portion, and conveyed by deed bearing date 18 and 19 March 1744,<sup>145</sup> to Thomas Patten, Esq., from whom it descended to the right honourable John Wilson Patten, M.P., who was elevated to the peerage in 1874 as lord Winmarleigh, and to whom the entire township now belongs.

NETHER WYRESDALE.

At the completion of the Domesday Survey (A.D. 1086), Wyresdale was included in the land described as being "waste," i.e., in its wild or uncultivated state; but sometime within the next century a colony of Cistercian Monks from Furness had a temporary settlement there, but about A.D. 1188 they removed to Ireland, where they founded an abbey.<sup>146</sup> In 1102 the lands in Amounderness, held by Roger de Poicton, which doubtless included Wyresdale, became the property of the crown, and in 1245 we find that William de Lancastre granted to Robert le Taylour liberty of free fishing in all the waters, great and small, in his manor of "Wiresdale,"<sup>147</sup> Richard I. had, however, given the royal prerogatives in the forests of Lancashire to his brother John, Earl of Morton, who, in the first year of his reign (1199-1200), confirmed a charter, whereby he granted to the knights, thanes and freeholders of the county, the privileges of cutting, selling, and giving their forest wood at their will without being subject to the forest regulations; and also to hunt and take hares, foxes, rabbits, and all kinds of wild beast, except stag, hind, and roebuck, and wild hogs, in all parts of the forest, except in the "demesne hayas."<sup>148</sup>

In the perambulation of the forests of Lancashire in 12 Henry III (1227-28) Wyresdale is not named, but by charter dated at St. Paul's, London, 30 June 1266, Henry III granted to Edmund, his son (Edmund Crouchback), inter alia, "all his vaccary and forest of Wiresdale."<sup>149</sup>

In the time of Edward II, Thomas Thwenge was forester of Wyresdale, and in 22 Edward IV (1482), there were two foresters of Wyresdale who were each paid annually 30s. 4d.;<sup>150</sup> and in or about 1588 the "maister of Wiresdale and Quernmore were paid 3*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* a year," and it is declared that amongst the forests, chases, and parks belonging to the duchy, out of which the Chancellor, Attorney General, Receiver General, and two Auditors, are to have deer, summer and winter, was Wiresdale.<sup>151</sup> Leland, in the time of Henry VIII, describes Wyresdale as a deer forest, "partly woody and partly hethye."

The manor of Wyresdale, in the time of William de Lancastre, probably included what are now known as Over and Nether Wyresdale, the latter only forming part of the parish of Garstang.

In 18 Edward III (1344-5) Robert de Guynes held half the manor of Wyresdale<sup>152</sup> (which John de Plesington held it of him by knight's service), and which afterwards descended to John,

The administrators of Walter Rigmayden, in 1602, sold his interest in Garstang manor, and doubtless at the same time disposed of the moiety of Wyersdale to Thomas, Lord Gerard, who, in 1604, had become possessed of the entirety.<sup>156</sup>

Wyersdale passed from the Gerard family to the Dukes of Hamilton and Brandon (see p. 16), and in 1853 was sold, with Cabus and Cleveley, to the late Peter Ormerod of Wyersdale Park, Esq., whose widow is the present owner.

Baines, writing in 1836, refers to "a Saxon polity more ancient than the Domesday Survey existing in the Constablewick of Garstang until a recent period"; if there was at that time any authentic record of such a "Saxon polity" it is greatly to be regretted that it was not quoted by the author of The History of Lancashire, who only extracts a few lines from the "books of the court," which do not, in any way, prove that such an institution as a "Constablewick" ever existed in the parish.

The entry quoted is as follows: "June 29 1642. Ordered by the Court Jury, that the Court shall be yearly elected out of the several townships: the first year out of Barnacre, Bonds and Tarnican being thought a third part: the second out of Cabus, Cleveley and Holleth: and the third or remainder out of Wyersdale, Longmore or Pillin Moss and the other parts."

In the preceding pages the following facts have been recorded, viz., that in 1226 the township of Garstang was held by the Baron of Kendal and Wyersdale; in 1362 Sir John Haverington held lands in Garstang and Winmarleigh as of the manor of Wyersdale, whilst Barnacre-with-Bonds, Cabus, Cleveley, Holleth, Kirkland, and Nateby, all owed suit and service to the same manor; and in the time of Edw. I. part of Pilling Moss belonged to the Forest of Wyersdale; on the other hand we have no evidence whatever of any suit or service been paid to the manor of Garstang by any of the surrounding townships.

The fact is, the chief lordship or manor of the district was Wyersdale, and its lord held there a Court Leet with a View of Frank Pledge, from time immemorial, and does so at the present day, and the "Court Book" quoted by Baines (which is now lost or destroyed), doubtless referred to it, and not to Garstang, which only holds the court baron, which necessarily belong to every manor.

Baines whilst speaking of the "Constablewick of Garstang," admits that the court belonging to it met at Cabus under the direction of the Duke of Hamilton, the "superior Lord of the wick until 1816," whilst it is certain that long before this period the Hamilton family had ceased to have any interest in the manor of Garstang, whilst they retained the manorial rights of Nether Wyersdale until 1853.

There can be no doubt but that this court leet with view to Frank Pledge is of very great antiquity, and represents a relic of the old "Frith-borh or Peace Pledge," by which the "communitas" or inhabitants of the place were bound to each other, and to the State, for the maintenance of public peace. An ordinary court baron is not a court of record, but only regards the suit and service of the tenants of the lord, but the court leet is a court of record, and is held, not only on behalf of the lord, but also of the king.

From an old MS. volume belonging to this court<sup>158</sup> are taken the following particulars:

"PRECEPT to summon the court. You are hereby required to give due summons to the Court Leet with a view to Frank Pledge of our <sup>158</sup> We are indebted to the present steward W. P. Fullagar, Esq., for the loan of this.

Sovereign Lord the King and Court Baron of Sir H. H [amilton] Bar<sup>t</sup> Lord of the Manor afors<sup>d</sup> to be holden at the house of Inn Keeper in afores<sup>d</sup> on the day of at 10th clock aforenoon, that they be and personally appear at the day time and place above mentioned then and there to do and perform such suits and services as every of them respectively belong and wherewith they shall be charged and you are then and there to make return of due execution of the precept.

To ——— Warner for said Manor. <sup>159</sup>W<sup>m</sup> S[tyth] Steward of the said Court."

The court was opened with the usual proclamation, calling upon all who had "suit and service" to answer to their names, those not so answering being returned as "defaulters," "essioned for" or "excused."<sup>160</sup> The old jury of thirteen, "good and lawful men of the manor," gave up their presentments, and a new jury was called and sworn, then followed the CHARGE, which, if read in full, must have sorely tried the patience of the court. The preamble sets forth that all "High Treasons, Petty Treasons and Felonys" are here "inquireable and presentable as the Leet is the King's Court, but not punishable"; and then follows a long list of crimes and their respective punishments, which it is not necessary to quote, as the details differ, but slightly, from those given in extenso in The Manchester Court Leet Records (Chetham Soc., vols. lxiii and lxv).

This is doubtless the charge which, in former times, was read on the elevated piece of ground now known as Constable Hillock. The jury next proceeded to enquire of the constables if they had "apprehended all vagabonds, rogues, and sturdy fellows"; if they had "pursued the hue and cry after thieves and robbers"; if they kept the "stocks, ducking-stool, and shooting-butts in repairs"; and also, if the surveyors of highways, and overseers of the poor, had performed their duty.

<sup>159</sup> This William Styth is no doubt the Steward whose house was destroyed by fire in the middle of last century, but he was not as Baines states Steward of the manor of Garstang.

The jury are warned to enquire if the "comon pond" is looked after. The ale-house keepers, butchers,<sup>161</sup> bakers, &c., are to be watched; and all "forestallers, ingrossers, and regrators"<sup>162</sup> of corn and victuals presented.

From the records of the court held in 1822, it appears that the jury was elected as follows: two for Barnacre, one for Bonds, two for Cabus, one for Cleveley, one for Holleth, one for Pilling Moss, one for Tarnacre, and three for Wyersdale<sup>163</sup>; the following officers were also elected, viz., assessors, pinders, fence lookers, and house lookers, for the township of Barnacre-with-Bond, Cabus, Cleveley, Holleth, Nateby, and Wyersdale.

The court is still held annually (at the end of October) at the Hamilton Arms in Cabus, and although the "charge" is not read, most of the old customs are observed.

In Nether Wyersdale is the village of Scorton, which has been styled "the model village," because it contains neither a public-house, nor a doctor, nor a lawyer, nor a policeman. The scenery in the neighbourhood is fine, and in no way answers to the description of Wyersdale given by Camden, viz., "a solitary and dismal place." There are a few small mills in Wyersdale, which furnish employment to the inhabitants of Scorton and Dolphinholme.

Scorton is a village of quite modern birth. John Rignayden, by will dated 20 October, 1587, bequeaths 30*l.* to Elizabeth Morrison "out of money yssuinge out of" his "farme of Scurton." (See Scorton Hall, chapter vii.)

THE TOWN OF GARSTANG.

In 20 Edward I. (1291-2) an unsuccessful attempt was made to prove that the Lord of Coucy was here holding a market, and exercising various other rights which belonged exclusively to the crown (see p. 6). Edward II., by charter dated the fourth year of his reign (1310-11), granted to the Abbot of Cockersand the right to hold a market every Thursday at Garstang, and also a fair of two days duration, viz., on the vigil, and the day of the feast of the apostles St. Peter and St. Paul, i.e., 28th and 29th June.<sup>164</sup> Baines in his History of Lancashire,<sup>165</sup> states that in the 7 Edward II. the town of Garstang was incorporated, but for this no authority has been found at the Record Office or elsewhere, and the subsequent history of the town renders it extremely improbable that such a charter was ever granted.

<sup>162</sup> Regrator is one who obtains by unfair means corn, &c., and sells the same in open market or fair. Ingrosser is one who gets corn, &c., by buying on promise, taking other than by demise, grant, or lease, &c., to the intent to sell again.

The right to hold a market and fair having been given to the Abbot of Cockersand, on the dissolution of that Monastery the privilege would lapse to the crown, and probably for the next half century no market or fair was held.

In the time of Henry VIII., Leland records in his itineray, "After I rode over Brok Water (he was journeying from Preston) rising a vi miles of in the hilles on the right hand and goeth at last into Wyre. Calder rising about the same hilles, goeth also into Wyre: I rode over hit.

"By the townes end of Garstange, I rode over a great stone bridge<sup>166</sup> on Wyer or I cam to it. Wyre rises a viii or tenne myles from Garstan out of the hilles on the right hande and cummeth by Greenhaugh a pretty castle of the lord of Darbys and more than half a myle thens to Garstang in Anderness.

"Sum saith that Garstang was a market towne."

What Leland meant by the last paragraph is, that at that time no market was held in Garstang, but that tradition said it had been a market town. This view is supported by the fact that on 13 January 1597, Queen Elizabeth granted "to the Inhabitants of the Towne of Garstange for the relief of the poore of the same Towne a weekly Market to be kept in the same Towne upon the Stretewaie and also two Faires yearly the one upon the Feast daie of St Peter and Paul and the other upon St Martyn's daie in Wynter.<sup>167</sup>

Nearly a century later, a charter of incorporation was granted to the inhabitants of Garstang by Charles II.<sup>168</sup> The original Letter's Patent is in the custody of the present Bailiff. The following is an extract of a translation of it, taken from the Bailiff's Records.

"Charles the second by the grace of God &c &c. Whereas our Town of Garstang in our County of Lancaster is an ancient populous Town and whereas the inhabitants of the said town have humbly besought us that we would be graciously pleased to incorporate the said town by such name and to give and grant such liberties and privileges to the Inhabitants thereof as to us should seem most expedient. . . . We will by these presents for us our heirs &c so ordain and grant that the town of Garstang for ever hereafter may or shall be a Free Borough . . . . and we make ordain and constitute Garstang a Free Borough and that the inhabitants thereof shall be a Body corporate by the name of the Bailiff and Burgesses of the Borough of Garstang . . . . and that they by the name of the Bailiff and Burgesses of the Borough of Garstang may and shall be for ever hereafter persons fit and capable in Law to have receive and possess any Manors, Lands &c to them and their successors for ever or for a term of years And also all Goods and chattels and every . . . . other matter or thing, and also to give grant demise alien 'assign' and dispose of such Manors Lands &c. . . .

And that the Bailiff and Burgesses of the Borough aforesaid so appointed and their successors may for ever have a Common Seal for all manner of causes and business to be acted or done by them, and that it shall and may be lawful for the Bailiff and Burgesses of the Borough or their successors at their pleasure from time to time to break change and make new such seal. . . . And further we Grant to the said Bailiff and Burgesses that there shall and may be within the said Borough one of the most honest and discreet men of the said Borough to be elected and chosen in manner hereafter mentioned who shall be and shall be called the Bailiff of the Borough And likewise that there shall and may be seven sufficient and discreet men of the said Borough to be elected in manner and form herein likewise aftermentioned who shall be and shall be called the Burgesses of the said Borough out of whom a Bailiff of the said Borough for the time being shall be elected and for the better execution of the premises we have named assigned constituted and made our trusty well beloved William Spencer the elder Esquire to be the first and modern [present] Bailiff<sup>169</sup> of the said Borough who shall take his Corporal Oath upon y<sup>e</sup> Holy Evangelist before Thomas Butler Esquire rightly well and faithfully to execute the said office and after such Oath so taken which said Oath we do give and grant full power and authority to the said Thomas Butler to administer to the said William Spencer. We will and grant that he the said William Spencer shall be and continue to be Bailiff and shall exercise the said office until the Feast of S<sup>t</sup> Michael the Archangel which shall be in the year 1680 and from the said Feast until another of the Burgesses shall be elected and sworn Bailiff. And also we constitute and make our well beloved subjects Ralph Longworth gentleman Thomas Green Thomas Cooper Thomas Brewer and John Sturzaker Inhabitants of the said Borough to be the seven first and modern [present] Burgesses who shall every one of them take his corporall oath upon the Holy Evangelist before the said modern [present] Bailiff rightly well and faithfully to execute the office and every of them shall continue a Burgess for and during their natural lives unless in the meantime for bad governing or ill behaviour or for not inhabiting and staying within the said Borough they or any of them shall be thence removed. And further grant that the said Bailiff and Burgesses shall have power and authority from year to year for ever upon the 29th of September to assemble and meet together in any convenient place within the said Town and elect a fit man of the Burgesses who being so elected shall be Bailiff and continue in office for one year [provision is made for election of Bailiff or Burgess in the case of death]. And we give and grant to the said Bailiff and Burgesses free and lawful power to have receive and take to them any Manors, Messuages, Lands &c within our kingdom or elsewhere within our dominions, so as such Manors &c to be had purchased or received do not exceed in all the clear yearly rent of 50*l*. And further we will and by our abundant special grace and favour we have given to the aforesaid Bailiffs and Burgesses that they shall have, hold and keep within the Borough towards the sustenance . . . . and relief of the poor Inhabitants thereof a Market to be holden there upon the Thursday weekly and every week for ever, and also a fair to be kept yearly to begin upon the Vigil or Eve of St Peter and Paul the Apostles and continue two days viz the said eve the said Feast of St Peter and St Paul and also another Fair to be holden yearly on Vigil or Eve of St Martin the Bishop in Winter to continue for two days in the usual Market or Fair place and upon the several days heretofore kept and now to us surrendered which said surrender we have accepted together with the Court of Piepowder in the time of the several Fairs aforesaid and all manner of tolls piccage stallage profits whatsoever to such Market and Fairs

Wherefore we strictly charge and command that the said Bailiffs &c for ever may have hold and enjoy in the said Borough a Market and Fairs and Court of Piepowder &c &c.

In testimony whereof we have caused these Letters to be made patents dated at Westminster the fifth day of August in the 31st year of our Reign [A.D. 1680].

The only Municipal Records which have been preserved are contained in a thick folio volume, from which we have extracted the following items :<sup>170</sup>

<sup>171</sup> An Inscription on St. Thomas Chapel (see post) is said to have mentioned Richard Longworth, Bailiff, in 1666, and another Inscription on the old Bell refers to "Balives" in 1668, but by what authority the office was held does not appear. Prior to this date we have not found any reference to a Bailiff.

It is unanimously ordered and agreed that such Bailiff for the Body Politick as shall hereafter be elected and chosen shall for ever thereafter have liberty to expend the sum of ten shillings yearly at the Assizes and Sessions of Peace, and shall have the same allowed out of the Town's Stock, and no more.

The holding of the Courts since the year 1699 are regularly recorded, and in one stereotyped form of words (in Latin), simply setting forth that the last Bailiff has presented his accounts and

At the Fairs it appears that it was necessary for the vendor of horses to obtain a certificate, of which copies were entered in the town's book. The following are selected :

Januarie the 7th 1697.

In 1742 the local authorities managed to lose possession of their Town Hall, and an order was made for "an ejectment against Mr. Joseph Whitehead and Mr. Robert Browne" who had "kept possession without any permission of the Bailiff and Burgesses."

29 October 1789, the Bailiff and Burgesses did "name and appoint the Lyon Levant" to be their "common seal for all purposes whatsoever." The seal is still in use.

On the 9th of February 1830, an additional fair was instituted to be held on 12th and 13th days of April for the sale of "meat, cattle, horses, sheep, pigs, wares, and merchandise."

Blome, in 1673, describes Garstang as "indifferent good town" which "hath a great market for corn, cattle, yarn and fish, on Thursdays";<sup>177</sup> and William Stout records that, in 1691, the market for cheese was "mostly at Garstang and Preston."<sup>178</sup>

Richard Brathwait, about the year 1650, published the first edition of his Barnabee's Journal, which contains the following incident :

“ Thence to Garstang pray you heark it,
Ent'ring there a great beast market,
As I jogged on the street
T'was my fortune for to meet
A young heifer, who before her
Took me up and threw me o'er her.”

After this it is not to be wondered at, that the traveller immediately departed for Preston.

The Diary of the Rev. Peter Walkden<sup>179</sup> furnishes a graphic description of a visit to this fair :

“ Nov 11 (1729) So got ready for Garstang fair and having a design to offer my little mare for sale I set son Henry on her . . . so we went direct to Garstang and put in our mares at Joseph Brown's and meeting Brother John Miller, I went with him and warmed me, and we had each a pint of ale. He being gone I paid for both pints 4<sup>d</sup>, and I paid Joseph Brown for the half windle of barley that my son fetched. It would have been 7<sup>s</sup> 4<sup>d</sup> had I given 3<sup>s</sup> 8<sup>d</sup> a peck as I did for what I bought of him myself but he took 7<sup>s</sup> and gave my Henry a penny.

“ So I went and shewed my little mare and had 2 guineas bid for her, if I would bring her up to Mr Bolton's but I thought it too little. So I stood most of the fair but had no more offer ; so I put her into the croft and went down town and had a pint of ale with Richard Caiton at Wallacee's. Then went to have bought onions but found none to sell. I then bought 4 quarts of nuts at 2½<sup>d</sup>, a pennyworth of gingerbread and a pair of gloves for son Henry. So came to Joseph Brown's and set waiting for brother Miller and his brother Joseph Miller with whom I stayed while we had two pints of ale which brother Miller paid for ; so I got my mares and my son Henry, and went to brother Miller's to lodge.”

Of the extent of this cattle fair at the commencement of the present century, an idea may be formed from the fact, that on the 22nd November 1805, no less than 3000 head of cattle passed through Lancaster to attend it.<sup>180</sup>

During the Civil War Garstang raised four companies for the Parliamentary army under the command of John Fyffe of Wedicar hall, Christopher White of Claughton, and Richard Whitehead of Garstang town (see Greenhalgh castle, p. 20).

During the rebellion of 1715 the inhabitants of Garstang were not all true to the reigning monarch, but contributed their quota to the rebel army. On the 9th November (1715), the insurgents left Lancaster en route for Preston, but finding the "day rainy and the ways deep they left the Foot at a small market-Town called Garstang, with orders to advance next morning to Preston, which they accordingly did."<sup>181</sup>

The only recruit whose name was recorded as having been induced to join the standard of the Chevalier de St. George, was Roger Moncaster, an attorney-at-law and town clerk of the corporation.<sup>182</sup>

Roger Moncaster (or Muncaster) was not a native, and very little is known about him; on 29 May 1710, he was married at Church Town to Alice, daughter of Robert Plesington of Dimples, and he appears to have been on terms of intimacy with Thomas Tyldesley and other well-known supporters of the Pretender's cause. The Tyldesley Diary contains several allusions to him:

"1712 May 6. Thence to Garstange. Spent 6<sup>d</sup> at M<sup>rs</sup> Bessley's but M<sup>r</sup> Muncaster treated us att Betty Wakefeilds one:

Muncaster followed the army to Preston, and being there taken prisoner was tried at the assizes on the 20th January following, convicted of high treason, and condemned to die the traitor's death; and accordingly, on the 27 January 1716, he and four others were executed at Gallows hill, Preston. Before his execution he handed to the sheriff the following declaration :

“ Dear Friends

“ I am brought hither to be a Miserable and Dismal Spectator to you all. The crime I am accused of, condemned and brought hither to be executed for, bears no manner or less infamous Title than Rebellion, a Crime prohibited both by the Laws of God and Man, and tho' I be the Person, not the only person to suffer for it, yet I declare that from my heart I do detest and abhor the very principles of Rebellion, and look upon the promoters and abettors thereof to be men without any, or at least any good principles, and enemies, in the highest degree to the lawful Sovereign King George and Country. I shall not trouble you any further with this, but acquaint you, that upon a serious recollection of my bypast, and God knows too long continued transgressions and offences both against God and Man, and a strict view and inquiry to the outmost of my power into my wicked course of life, those very sins that I have wretchedly committed, have brought the deserved vengeance of God upon me, tho' they shelter and cloke themselves under the base title of my crime.

“ I heartily, and with the utmost sincerity, repent of my sins of what nature soever, and I hope through Faith, and the merits and intercession of my blessed Saviour and Redeemer to obtain remission thereof.

“ And I in perfect charity with all men, and freely from my heart, forgive all, particularly every one concerned in my Execution, desiring forgiveness of all persons, here present or elsewhere, whom I have anywise offended. I was educated in the Protestant Religion, of the Established Church of England, have continued so all my life, and dye in the same and am sorry that I should blemish the Church by my late proceedings, for which I now die, and beg patience to hear repeat the Articles of my Christian Faith. I believe &c. I desire you would take such caution from my unfortunate example, as may prevent the like to any of you. I desire you would all join with, and for me, in Prayer to Almighty God for remission of my sins, and that through the merits and mediation of his Son Jesus Christ, our only Saviour and Redeemer, I may meet with a glorious resurrection to Life eternal." <sup>184</sup>

The town clerk was not, however, the only rebel in Garstang, for amongst the prisoners taken to London was John Leybourne of Nateby, and amongst those tried at Liverpool were Edward Sykes of Nether Wyersdale, labourer; Thomas Walmesley of Bilsborough, innkeeper; Joseph Wadsworth of Catterall, gentleman; Thomas Cartmel of Bilsborough, yeoman, and Thomas Goose, Junior, of Catterall. Of these the two first were acquitted, but the three last were condemned, and were executed at Garstang (tradition says at Stock Lane End, Catterall) on 14 February 1716, along with one Allan Sanderson, a ship carpenter of Preston. <sup>185</sup>

In the accounts of Thomas Crisp, Esq., high sheriff of Lancashire, appears the following item:

"Feb. 15-16, 1715-16. Charge at Garstang and Lancaster on executing 4 at either place 22*l.* os. 8*d.*, besides the undersheriffs."

Joseph Wadsworth was a son of Nicholas Wadsworth of Haighton, whose father, Hugh Wadsworth, recorded a pedigree in 1664-5 (see Dugdale's Visitation); like Roger Muncaster he was a "chum" of Thomas Tyldesley's, and his name often occurs in his diary, where he is termed "cos" (cousin), but in what way he was related does not appear.

"1712, May 6. Wee parted about 7: but att John Corley's door old cos Tom Goose, cos Wadsworth, Mr. Plesington, and young cos Tom Goose with Will. Bolton stayed us till 9. Wee spent 1*s.* each: and p<sup>d</sup> pro young Tom Goose."

"June 5. Went early in the morning ffox hunting with cos Wadsworth to meet Mr. Penket and found a ffox, but could not holle him; afterwards went to Garstange."

"1713, Feb. 28. Cos Wadsworth dined and stayed all night."

The "young Tom Goose" above named was no doubt the companion of Wadsworth on the scaffold ; a family of that name had, for several generations, been settled in the parish ; in 25 Eliz. (1582-3), a Thomas Gose is defendant in a case, brought before the Duchy Court, concerning lands called the "Wrases" in Winmarleigh;<sup>186</sup> in 1604, Alexander, Robert, and Henry Goose held lands in Barnacre under the Lord Gerard ; and in 1641, Richard Goose of Catterall, Henry Goose of Wyersdale, Thomas and Henry Goose of Barnacre, John and James Goose of Claughton, were amongst those who had not taken the protestation (see post). A local tradition obtains that Goose was arrested at Garstang for shouting out to the rebels as he stood on market cross,

"Hey ye on me lads and you'll take the crown with a distaff."<sup>187</sup>

Nothing is known concerning Thomas Cartmell, except that he belonged to an old Garstang family, the name appearing in the Church Register in 1567, and several of the family being tenants of the Lord of Wyersdale in 1604 (see p. 48).

The Parish Registers record the burial, on 16 February 1715-16, of "Mr Joseph Wadsworth and Tho<sup>s</sup> Goose of Catterall, and Tho<sup>s</sup> Cartmell of Claughton, Rebels."<sup>188</sup>

In the Rebellion of 1745 the Rebel Army again passed through Garstang, arriving there on the 27 November on their way to Preston, and on the day following, James Ray the author of A complete History of the Rebellion, and a volunteer under his Royal Highness, the Duke of Cumberland, arrived there, and to use his own words, "I allighted at Capt. Gardner's at the Royal Oak. At my first setting out to reconnoitre the Rebels, I proposed to pass and repass them, in the Road in the Station of a Trader, going about my own private affairs ; for which I was provided with bills of Parcels, Letters of Orders, &c., in case I should be searched by them, as it might more evidently appear

I was the real person pretended to be ; but being advised not to venture among them, by reason I might find it a great difficulty to acquit myself of them again, as they might be too penetrating to see through such a disguise. Seeing my desires could not be readily fulfilled in this way, I resolved to take some other method, which might be full as prejudicial as the former, viz., on taking up their straglers ; and being informed that there was two in the Town which happened to stay behind their Command, I resolved to go and take them : for which purpose I borrowed a Fuzee and a case of pistols, so being shewed to their Quarters, I immediately went in, and took them Prisoners, and after disarming them, with which arms I supply'd myself, committed them to the care of a Constable, who, with his guard, conducted them safe to Lancaster Castle. In the Road to Preston I picked up another stragler."

A tale is still told at Garstang that during the short stay of the Rebels here, their treasure box was stolen and secreted in a ditch in a field behind, and a little to the south of the Town Hall ; but in consequence of the threats of the soldiers the money was restored.<sup>189</sup>

The parish of Garstang from Pilling to Nether Wyersdale extends fourteen miles, and from Cabus to Bilsborrow five miles, and comprises an area of over 28,800 statute acres. The river Wyre rises from two rivulets in Nether Wyersdale ; near Scorton it is joined by a stream called Grizedale Beck, at Catterall it is increased by the Calder (which rises in the Bleasdale hills) and just as it leaves the parish the Brock runs into it. The Broad-fleet, a stream which springs out of the mosses on the west of the parish, discharges itself into a small arm of Morecambe bay at Pilling.

The population of Garstang was, until quite a recent date, entirely engaged in agriculture. In the early part of the present century extensive calico works were established by Messrs.

Between 1861 and 1871 the population of the entire parish slightly decreased.

CHAPTER II.

ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY.

ALTHOUGH the Domesday survey does not furnish evidence that a church at Garstang at that time existed, it would not be safe to infer that it had not then been erected. William de Lancastre, who was steward to Henry II. (about a century after the Domesday survey) held the church of Garstang, and Warin de Lancastre, his son, granted all his right to the advowson of it to the abbot of Cockersand, before the close of the twelfth century,<sup>1</sup> and in 17 John (1215-16), Gilbert, the son of Roger, the son of Reinfrid, who had married Helewise, the daughter of William de Lancastre, conveyed his right to the patronage of Garstang church to the same monastery, "for the salvation of the souls of king Henry, king Richard, and his own son and that of Helewise his wife."<sup>2</sup>

The church of "St Helens, near the bridge over the Wyre," is mentioned in a deed of gift to the hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, made in the time of John (see p. 24).

The grant made by Henry, the son of Warin de Lancastre (who was living in 1198-99), conveying certain rights in Forton to the abbot of Furness (see p. 31 note), was witnessed by "Robert the Parson of Gairstang." Sometime during the reign of John (1199-1216), William de Lancastre, the son of Henry de Lancastre, granted the advowson of the church of Garstang to the abbot of Cockersand, with all its appurtenances;<sup>3</sup> the grant being witnessed by (amongst others) Ralph de Betham, Richard de Coupeland, and Robert de Gairstange.

In 5 John (1203-4), Gilbert Fitz Reinfrid appeared as plaintiff and Magister Matthew (probably vicar of St. Michael) as defendant, the question to be decided being, did the church of Garstang belong to St. Michael's-upon-Wyre or not? The jury decided that "the church of St Helen of Geresteng never was a chapel belonging to the church of St Michael upon Wir which is in the king's gift but they have judged it to have been always in their times a mother church."<sup>4</sup>

The lost Coucher Book of Cockersand contained a confirmation of the rights of the abbot and convent to the advowson of the church of Garstang, of which fortunately a copy in the original Latin is preserved in Whitaker's Richmondshire (see appendix A), and a translation of it is amongst the church papers,<sup>5</sup> the text of which is as follows :

"To all Christian People &c. John Le Romaine Archdeacon of Richmond, send greeting, know ye that we out of our pious and charitable regard commiserating the poverty of the Abbot and Convent of Cockersand, since they had before a discreet and fully experienced authority committed to our administration of the Church of Garstang itself, and all things appertaining thereunto, have confirmed the same to them and their successors for ever, for the benefit of the poor and of strangers and the advantage of the same house.

"They are to bestow an unencumbered Vicarage upon us and our successors by presenting a Vicar to the same Vicarage, rated as follows. That is to say, that the vicar in the name of the Vicar, may have and receive for ever tithes of all kind, as well great as small, and increase of all kind of what denomination so ever throughout the whole village of Claughton, to which village Heyham and Duncunberg belong. And from the said Village, with its appurtenances the Vicar shall have all 'obventions and oblations both of the dead and living. The Vicar shall also have the free right of common, in the wood-lands of Garstang and Kirkland, with a moiety of the tithes of pannage of Kirkland. Furthermore the Vicar for the time being shall yearly have and receive for ever all oblations of the parish church of Garstang, belonging to the three solemn Feasts namely the Feast of the Nativity of our Saviour, of the Passover, and of Mother Church, together with all the appointed dues, missals, yearly records, masses for the dead, private benefits and other accustomed and small obventions due to the said Vicar, and his Chaplain on account of Vigils, of Burials and of marriage.

“But let the said Vicar engage that he will faithfully perform all the holy duties, which are to be performed in the Church of Garstang, and that he will pay all the ordinary and accustomed Archidiaconial dues pertaining to the said Church. The said Vicar shall yearly in the Village above mentioned collect Peter’s pence and the Archdeacon of the place shall be responsible for them, according to his proportion in such manner as the Abbot and Covent shall be responsible for their proportions. And be it known the Vicar shall have one sufficient mansion house near the church yard, of the said church, which is called Philip-toft and shall have one oxgang of ground within the limits of Garstang, with its appurtenances, exemption from payment of all tithes both great and small and one dwelling house, with the aforesaid oxgang belonging to it, and all other privileges and liberties to the same belonging, saving to us and our successors, the wool and lamb and Peter’s pence heretofore mentioned without any diminution throughout the whole Parish.

“In testimony whereof we have to these presents affixed our Seal.”

The date of this confirmation must have been A.D. 1241, as John le Romayn (who must not be confounded with the archbishop of that name) was not archdeacon of Richmond until that year (he died in 1256), and the confirmation itself was fortified by the assent of Archbishop Walter Gray, with the Dean and Chapter of York, and finally by a Bull of Pope Gregory IX., dated at the Lateran, xiv kal. May, in the fifteenth<sup>6</sup> year of his pontificate (A.D. 1241).

<sup>6</sup> Whitaker’s Richmondshire, vol. ii, p. 449, where the last date is printed fifth year of Gregory IX. (1232), a misprint for fifteenth year. Walter Grey was bishop of Worcester, and translated to York 1216, he died 1255.

In 30 Hen. III. (1244-6), Jordan, the son of Torfin, in consideration of 30s. quit claimed before the king's justices at Lancaster, to Henry, the abbot of Cockersand, one bovate and six acres of land, respecting which a suit had been instituted to try whether it was a "lay fee or an appurtenance to the rectory of Garstang."<sup>7</sup>

About the same date an agreement was made between the prior of Lancaster and the abbot of Cockersand respecting certain tithes, such agreement being necessary on account of the close proximity of Garstang to the Royal Forest where the abbot had exclusive rights (see appendix B).

Garstang church, according to the Taxatio Ecclesiastica of Pope Nicholas, A.D. 1291, was rated at 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, the old tax being 10*l.*; the vicarage was 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, and the old tax 5*l.*

The Inquisitiones Nonarum, which was completed in 1341, gives the following value, viz., ancient tax x marks, new tax xv marks, true value xx marks, of which Garstang pays xiiij marks, Claghton 2 marks, Catterall xxvi<sup>s</sup> viii<sup>d</sup>, Bilsborough xx<sup>s</sup>, the vicarage xx marks as ancient tax, and c<sup>s</sup> as new.

In 1357, Ellena, the wife of Roger de Brockholes, died seized of certain lands in Claughton, Billesburgh, and Catterall, which she held in socage of William de Tatham by service of one rose yearly, and to find a chaplain to celebrate divine service at Claughton, or in the church at Garstang, at a salary of 66*s.* 8*d.*<sup>8</sup>

The following confirmation of rights conveyed to the abbot of Cockersand by William de Lancastre is quoted by Whitaker as from the Coucher Book before named :

"Be hit knawen to all men y<sup>t</sup> whereas y<sup>e</sup> Abbot and Covent of Cockersond, are seisset and theyr p'decessores before theym of c'teyn Londez and tenementz, menez, Rentz, Meddowes, Pasturez, Wastez, Mossez, Fysshyngez, Approwmentz made, and to be made and of oder dyuersez Possessionz, Franchez, and Prosetz and Esiamenz in the Towne of Gayrstang and Fforton by y<sup>e</sup> Gyft, Graunt and Feffement of S<sup>r</sup> William

In the beginning of the next century the church underwent some extensive repairs, as it appears that a warrant was issued in 4 Henry IV. (1402-3), to the chief foresters of Myerscough, to deliver to the parishioners of Garstang four timber oaks for the reparation of their parish church.

On the 24th February 1443-4, the archdeacon of Richmond issued a "monition" against the vicars of Lancaster and Garstang for non residence.<sup>9</sup>

The Valor Ecclesiasticus (taken in 1535) furnishes the following details. Under the head of "Spiritualities" belonging to the abbot of Cockersand, are :

In 29 Henry VIII. (1537-38) Robert the abbot of Cockersand granted the next presentation to the vicarage of Garstang to Sir William Powlet, knt., and John . . . . .<sup>13</sup>, but the abbey being finally dissolved in 1540, the right was probably never exercised, and in 1545 the patron was John Kytchen of Pilling, who in that year presented a vicar (see chapter v).

The advowson shortly afterwards passed to Christopher Anderton of Lostock, Esq. (son of Laurence Anderton, a descendant of the Andertons of Anderton), who presented a vicar in 1559, and by indenture dated 10 August 1569, granted a lease of the vicarage for twenty-one years to Thomas Anderton of Chorley, who was to pay 20*l.* per annum to Hugh Anderton the vicar.<sup>14</sup>

Christopher Anderton died 35 Elizabeth (1592-3), and shortly afterwards the advowson either reverted to the crown or was sold by James Anderton (the son of Christopher), as by deed dated 17 February, 4 James (1607), Gyles Simpson of London, goldsmith, and Sir Thomas Peyton of Knowlton, Kent, knt., in consideration of 900*l.*, enfeoffed and confirmed to James Bushell of Evesham, Westmoreland, gentleman, and Bryan Wharnlye of Borwick, Lancashire, yeoman, all "that Rectory and Church of Garstange, all the Glebe Lands tythes &c. and all manner of advowson &c. for ever, to be holden of the King's Manor of East Greenwich in free and common soccage and not in capite nor by Knight's service."<sup>15</sup>

In 1620 the vicar was presented by the master of the Wards, and in 1650 the Parliamentary Survey shows that the patronage was then held by Christopher Anderton, who is described as a "Papist Delinquent." He is believed to have died that same year,<sup>16</sup> and the advowson passed to his eldest son, Francis Anderton, who by indenture dated 16 September 1674, granted the next presentment to John Anderton of Wigan, gentleman, who in the year following conveyed it to Silvester Richmond, who in 1679 (19 May) purchased the advowson from Sir Charles Anderton of Lostock hall, bart. (eldest son of Sir Francis Anderton).<sup>17</sup> For the next century the Richmonds were so intimately connected with the parish that no apology is needed for here introducing a notice of the family.

Henry Richmond of Ashton Keynes, Wiltshire,<sup>18</sup> was four times married, and had twenty-five children ; the eldest son by the third marriage (with Bridget Taylor) was Silvester Richmond, who settled in Liverpool in 1662, where he practised as a physician, and for which town he was elected mayor in 1672.

In the troubled times of "the Lancashire Plot," Silvester Richmond, who was then a justice of the peace, and Oliver Lyme the deputy mayor of Liverpool, came under the unfavourable notice of James II., who, having received information of what was vaguely called "their misbehaviour," ordered their removal from the offices they held ; after the Revolution they were both re-instated.<sup>19</sup>

He married Sarah, a daughter of Clayton Tarlton of Aigburth, <sup>16</sup> Christopher Anderton, who died 35 Elizabeth, was succeeded by his son James, who died s.p. ; and his estates passed to his brother Christopher of Lostock, whose son Christopher is here named as the rector.

<sup>17</sup> MSS. in possession of Richard Pedder of Preston, Esq. Francis Anderton was created a baronet 8 October 1677.

<sup>18</sup> Family tradition makes this Henry to have been called Oliffe, and to have had thirty-four children ; but his grandson, Oliffe Richard of Ashton Keynes, in a letter to his cousin, Silvester Richmond, rector of Walton, dated 29 March 1736, gives the particulars as above quoted. There were several Oliffe Richmonds of Ashton Keynes, where the family had been settled for several generations. Of Henry Richmond's twenty-five children, only twelve lived to maturity, viz : first marriage, John and Henry ; second marriage, Peter ; third marriage, Silvester, Oliffe, James and Francis ; fourth marriage, Jane, Edward, Mary, Elizabeth and Thomasin.

Esq.,<sup>20</sup> who survived him, and by her Will left 50*l.* to the use of the almshouses which had been erected by her husband in Dale Street, Liverpool.<sup>21</sup> Silvester Richmond died in 1692; a tablet in St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, records:

"Here lieth the body of Silvester Richmond, Professor of Physick and chyrgery, who after nearly 30 years indefatigable care and successful Practice in this town and county at last exhausted that life which had been so carefully employ'd in the preservation of many others. He died the 16th and was interred the 19th April 1692."

His Will was proved at Chester, 22 June 1692, in which he bequeathed to his wife 2,000*l.* and all his household goods and plate, together with his "coach calash and horses," and after providing for his children and kinsmen, he leaves "to the poor of Liverpool 100*l.*," to the "Free School of Walton 10*l.*" The advowson of Garstang church he left to his executors upon trust, "who upon every vacancy thereof shall p'sent thereto my son Henry or such of my grandchildren or their issue as shall be unpreferred to some Ecclesiastical Living, in case of any vacancy not to present any stranger but to use all lawful meanes to see that some of my grandchildren or descendants may enjoy the same."

He had issue, (1) Richard Richmond (vicar of Garstang, see chapter v); (2) Margaret, baptized at Liverpool, 25 May 1663, married alderman Richard Houghton of Liverpool, and had issue; (3) Silvester (of whom hereafter); (4) Proctor, baptized at Liverpool, 11 June 1667; (5) Sarah, baptized at Liverpool, 14 April 1669; (6) Harold or Harrill, baptized at Liverpool, 4 February 1671; (7) Henry (vicar of Garstang, see chapter v); (8) Peter, baptized at Liverpool, 14 July 1675.<sup>22</sup>

<sup>20</sup> Another authority gives daughter of Banastre Tarlton. The Tarltons were established as merchants in Liverpool in 1559.

<sup>22</sup> Issue Margaret who married Mr. Tarleton, and left issue; Sarah died unmarried; Ann married Mr. Tyrer, an Architect of Liverpool, and had issue; Richard twice married, first to — Clayton, Second to Mrs. Booth; Frances married Alexander Entwistle, and a daughter who married — Shaw of York.

Silvester Richmond, the second son, was baptized at St. Nicholas' Church, Liverpool, 1 October 1665; he was for many years a merchant and lived in Water Street, Liverpool, but appears to have subsequently removed to Acton Grange, in the parish of Daresbury, Cheshire. In the Court Roll of the honor of Halton for 10 December 1720, his name is recorded as "steward of the Court to Robert Earl of Oxford" (then trustee for Earl Rivers), he is described as "Gentleman." Acton Grange was the property of Sir Richard Brooke, Bart., of Norton Priory, whose daughter Frances Elizabeth, Silvester Richmond married;<sup>23</sup> she survived her husband many years, and died at the age of 92.

The following epitaph was engraved on a monument in Daresbury church or church yard,<sup>24</sup> where Silvester Richmond was buried, 31 January 1746:

Silvester Richmond of Acton Grange had issue, (1) Mary, born 22 May and baptized at Liverpool,<sup>25</sup> 3 June 1700, died unmarried; (2) Brooke, born 4 June, baptized at Liverpool, 19 June 1701. Was a Captain in the Navy, died at Sea, and left no issue. He married Rebecca Poole; (3) Legh (vicar of Garstang, see chapter v); (4) George, born 19 February, baptized at Liverpool, 27 February 1704; (5) Silvester, born —October, baptized at Liverpool, 1 November 1706, entered the Brasenose College, Oxford, 21 March 1724, took his B.A. 17 October 1727. He died (s. p.) whilst at the University; (6) Frances, who was married at Daresbury on 3 June 1732 to John Atherton of Walton Hall, near Liverpool, Esq., and died in 1788, having issue, Catherine, who married her cousin, Dr. Henry Richmond (see chapter v), and Elizabeth, who married Michael Nugent, Esq.; (7) Letitia, born 2 June, baptized at Liverpool, 21 June 1709, and died unmarried.

Silvester Richmond (of Acton Grange), by deed dated 20 June 1740, conveyed the advowson of Garstang to his nephew, Silvester Richmond, rector of Walton (see chapter v), who in 1750 (2 July) sold it to Richard Pedder of Preston, gentleman.

The first representative of this family who settled in Preston was Thomas Pedder, who served as a "gentleman soldier" under captain Lynley. He was probably living in Preston in 1657, as on 16th May in that year he married Elizabeth, the daughter of Richard Fielden of "Freregate," in that town, and in the Guild

Roll of 1662 appears amongst the in-burgesses the name of "Thos. Pether."

He was thrice married; secondly, on 17 July 1662, to Alice Fielden, widow, of Preston, who was buried at Preston in November 1678, and left issue a son, Thomas Pedder, baptized 17 February 1666-7, who left issue; thirdly, on 29 September 1679, to Dorothy Postlethwaite, by whom he had one daughter, Elizabeth, baptized 11 April 1680.

By the first wife Thomas Pedder had issue, Joan, baptized 16 August 1658, and Richard Pedder of Preston, linnen webster, who was baptized 26 October 1659, and was buried at Preston 24 March 1725-6, having issue, (1) Elizabeth, baptized 1690-1; (2) Richard (of whom hereafter); (3) Jennet, baptized 1695; (4) Paul, baptized 28 January 1696-7, who was twice married and had issue; (5) Peter, baptized 1 February 1699-1700, was married and had issue; (6) Philip, baptized 30 April 1702, was married and had issue.

Richard, the eldest son of Thomas Pedder, was baptized 12 February 1692-3, was mayor of Preston 1748-9 and 1756-7, and died 20 December 1762; he married (20 January 1711-12) Jennet, the daughter of John Reed of Preston; she was buried 31 May 1773; they had eleven children, viz: (1) Richard, baptized 1712, married a daughter of Robert Ashburner of Preston, he died 1744, leaving no issue; (2) Ellen, died young; (3) Edward, born in 1717, mayor of Preston 1763-4, 1770-71 and 1776-77, he married Katherine, the daughter of John Clayton of Stockport, 15 March 1737, and was buried at Preston 13 May 1789, leaving issue; (4) Thomas, died young; (5) Jane, died young; (6) Thomas, born 1729, mayor of Preston 1779-80, died December 1781, s.p.; (7) Jane, died in infancy; (8) Grace, married John Derbyshire of Preston, gentleman; (9) James (vicar of Garstang, see chapter v); (10) Matthew, died in infancy.

The present patron of Garstang church is Richard Pedder, Esq., late of Preston and now of Finsthwaite house, near Ulverstone (see chapter v).

In February 1571,<sup>26</sup> the rectory of Garstang with the tithes of "corne, grayne and haye, wool, flaxe, hempe and lambe, and all other tithes whatsoever as well great as small and of all oblacions, fruits, profitts," were leased for a term of years (which had not expired in 1615) to Edward Turner, for a yearly rental. Before Trinity Term 1615, the lease was assigned to Robert Bindloss of Borwick, Esq., who in that year lodged a complaint in the Court of Exchequer to the effect that George Mitton the vicar of Garstang "nott resting himselfe satisfied wth the endow<sup>mt</sup>s" of the vicarage, which was of the value of at least 100*l.* a year, and "soe much as where wth all the vicars ever since the endow<sup>mt</sup> thereof have rested themselves satisfied hath ever since hee became to bee viccarr by reason of his habitation and dwellinge wthin the said parishe, wrongfully claymed extorted collected and gathered &c. a great parte of all and every the Easter dueties and paym<sup>ts</sup> att Easter commonlie called the Easter Reckonings or Easter booke of all and every y<sup>e</sup> parishioners that is to saie the oblations plowe pence howse money otherwise called smoake money or smoake pence, w<sup>ch</sup> several paym<sup>ts</sup> hee the said George Mitton hath obtained although he doth well knowe and soe hath beene often informed that yo<sup>r</sup> orator doth paie rent for the same to his Mag<sup>tie</sup>." The vicar was ordered to answer the charges, but his rejoinder has not been preserved.

In 1622 Sir Robert Bindloss, knight, again appears at the Exchequer Court as complainant against Alexander Standish, Esq., and Richard Greene, gentleman, the matter in dispute being the tithes of the parish of Garstang. Amongst the witnesses examined were Henry Mercer of Newhall in Barnacre, gentleman, aged 53; John Saul of Winmarleigh, yeoman, aged <sup>26</sup> In Baines' Hist. of Lanc. (second edition) it is stated that on 12 February 1571, the rectory, &c. was granted to Jane Kitchen for twenty-one years, she to pay to the curate 40*s* a year. No authority is given for this, and it is clearly incorrect. The particulars given about are from the "Exchequer Bills and answers, James I.," No. 156 at the Record Office. Robert Bindloss at the expiration of Turner's lease must have purchased the fee.

55; Robert Kitchin of Scurton, yeoman, aged 73; William Travers of Nateby, Esq., aged 64; Richard Blagbourne of Scurton, gentleman, aged 48; Christopher Walker of Netherwyersdale, yeoman, aged 65; and Richard Atkinson of Netherwyersdale, yeoman, aged 71. From the evidence produced, tithe corn appears then to have been let at the following annual rents, viz:

Tithe Corn and Barn of Winmarleigh	-	-	45 l .
"	"	Scorton	- - - 43 l .
"	"	Bilsborrow	- - - 40 l .

"	"	Barnacre	- - - 40 l .
"	"	Cabus and Cleveley	32 l .

Wedecar mill paid a tithe of 8*d*. per annum.

Kemp's tenement (which about thirty years before 1622 was held by one Christopher Kemp) was held as part of the demesne of Wedecar, and for which a tithe of three measures of meal per annum was paid.

The rent paid to the crown by Sir Robert Bindloss was 40*l*. a year.

At the time of the Parliamentary Survey of 1650, the Tithes of the whole parish (except Claughton) were impropriate, and Sir Robert Bindloss was still the lay rector; they were then worth 313*l*. per annum, with the small tithes of the annual value of 30*l*. and 12*d*., which was paid to him by Richard Shuttleworth for a water corn mill in Bilsborough, called "Powle Milne," being a rent due by prescription. The vicarage had belonging to it a house and three acres of glebe land in Garstang, worth 3*l*. per annum, also a parcel of land and one tenement called "Stout-house," which was then let for 17*l*. a year (but was worth twenty marks per annum), and was "deteyned from y<sup>e</sup> minister by John Greenwood of Lanc<sup>r</sup> upon p'tence of a Lease for a tearme of yeares yet is beinge made by Doctor Wildbore a delinquent late minister to y<sup>e</sup> use of Jane Rootes his kinswoman (see chapter v), who is now wife of y<sup>e</sup> said John Greenwood, a yearlie rent of eighteen shillings being only reserved out of the same to the minister of Garstang."

The tithes of corn and grain and all the small tithes of Claughton belonged to the vicar, and were worth 45*l.* per annum, the whole of the "profits of the Vicaridge" being worth 60*l.* a year. The "hamletts of Barniker, Wyersdale, Cabus, Winmerley and Natebie being neere adjacent (to Garstang) and consisting of many hundred families," requested that they might be "annexed to the Market Towne and be made a Parish," and that a minister might be placed there.<sup>27</sup>

By Indenture, dated 12 July, 12 Charles II. (1660) Sir Robert Bindloss, Bart., and Dame Rebecca his wife, conveyed "all that the Rectory, parsonage and church of Garstange, and all tithes and spiritualities" to William Standish, son and heir of Edward Standish of Standish Hall, Esq., in consideration of a marriage about to be celebrated between the said William Standish and Cecilia, the daughter of Sir Robert Bindloss.<sup>28</sup>

By deed, dated 1 September 1674, William Standish and Cecilia his wife conveyed the tithe-barn and tithes of corn, grain, hay, &c., of Catterall and Bilsborrow to Thomas Winckley of Preston, gent., it being agreed that out of the premises conveyed 20*s.* a year shall be reserved "towards the King's rent out of the Rectory of Garstenge," and that Thomas Winckley shall not be charged towards the repairs of the chancel of the parish church of Garstang.<sup>29</sup> The present lay rector is C. H. L. W. Standish of Standish, Esq.

There were two chantries in Garstang Church, one of which was dedicated to "our Ladie," and was founded in the south-east aisle by Margaret, the daughter and co-heiress of Sir Robert Laurence of Ashton Hall, and wife of Nicholas Rigmayden of Wedacre Hall, Esq. (see chapter vii), who, by deed dated 3rd October, 7 Henry VIII. (1515), devised certain lands (which she held in her own right) in trust, to the intent that the rents arising therefrom should be paid to an altar priest, for his yearly stipend, to sing, read, and pray in the parish church of Garstang. The office of priest was held from 1542-3 to 1544-5 by Thomas Laurenson, who, in the latter year, brought an action against John Rigmayden, the grandson of the founder, for refusing to pay the annual stipend.<sup>30</sup> Margaret Rigmayden died 10th August 1516. The lands and tenements with which the chantry was endowed in 1548 were of the yearly value of cvi<sup>s</sup> viii<sup>d</sup> without reprises.

The other chantry (probably dedicated to St. James) was founded by Roger de Brockholes, who was living in 1479,<sup>31</sup> and whose Inq. Post Mort. was dated 15 Henry VII. (1499). Henry Haye was incumbent here for some years, and was buried at Garstang 17th March 1577-8; his yearly salary at the time of the suppression of the chantries was xl<sup>s</sup> and his board.

The date of the erection of the present venerable-looking church is unknown, but a great portion of it is very old, and altogether it is a noble specimen of a well-preserved parish church. In 1746 an inundation of the River Wyre overflowed the churchyard, doing considerable damage to the church, which in consequence narrowly escaped being handed over to the "restorers." In 1811 the church was reroofed, and the walls raised at the joint expense of the parish and Thomas Strickland Standish, Esq., the lay rector. In 1868 it was again repaired, the roofs were opened, the galleries and pews cleared away, and the chancel walls restored to their ancient pattern.

The church now consists of a tower (containing a fine peal of bells),<sup>32</sup> a nave, north and south aisles, chancel, chancel aisles, south aisle, chapel and vestry.

<sup>32</sup> The bells are modern. In 1828 the vestry "resolved that a new cast of six bells, the tenor bell to be 12½ cwt., and the remaining bells in due proportion, be immediately procured," in 1829 130*l.* was borrowed "on the credit of the parish" to pay for them, and 2*l.* 14*s.* was paid for "carriage of old bells to London."

The nave is lighted by clerestory windows, which replaced the old gabled windows in 1811, and between it and the side aisles are strong and massive pillars. The east window is a five-light one of noble proportion and design, above the central light are two figures, intended to represent some or other of the saints, but which has long since been forgotten, and they are known as "Moses and Aaron," and about them is a tradition that if the glass which composes them should be taken out or destroyed, that it will miraculously re-appear. The tracery in the west windows of the aisles are worthy of note, as also the three light window erected in 1867 by Ann Bell, in memory of her parents, Thomas and Esther Bell, and her brothers and sister, Henry Bell, M.A., Richard Bell and Mary Ann Bell. A new east window was placed in the church in 1877.

The chancel is lofty and broad, and on either side are six stalls with grotesque carvings under the seats, over the choir vestry screen appears the following inscription which was formerly over the stalls, "Bona consuetudo exequiat quod mala extrucit. Minus semper dicit quam facias," and above the door is inscribed, "Pax ingrediem<sup>r</sup> tibus."

The lady chapel or chantry is separated from the aisle by two arches, and its flat roof is divided into square panels; on the frieze and oak beams of the roof is inscribed, "In templo gentes caveant simul esse loquentes. Demon scribit ibi cuncta locuta sibi, A.D. MDXXII hoc opus . . . . Sancta Maria ora pro nobis." The Piscina still remains.

In 1836 the vestry underwent some repairs, and over the ceiling was discovered a small room, which had in former times been used as the priest's chamber, and in it were some of the brasses now on the church walls.

In the north chancel wall was formerly an opening of two feet square (it is now made up at one end), which was in all probability used for the confession of lepers; it certainly was not as has been suggested a "squint," as it has no slant but opens full to the east.

On the ground floor of the tower were (not long ago) the following rules, painted on the plaster.

“[Whoever] a Bell doth overthrow
 [Shall pay] two groate before hee goe
 [And he that] ring<sup>d</sup> with his hatte on [Shall pay] two groate and then be gone
 [And he that] ring<sup>d</sup> with spur on heele
 . . . . ? that penalty shall feele
 [And he that] dare an oathe sweare
 [For that shall pay] two quartes of beare
 [These Rules are] ould they are not newe
 [But then the old] clark must have his dewe

S. R. B. M. J. Ringers.”

The pulpit bears the date of 1646.

Over the north western door of the church is a niche, which probably at one time contained a carved figure of the patron saint.

In the church are the following inscriptions :

IN SOUTH CHANCEL AISLE.

On Tablet,

“Hic sepelitur corpus Elizabethæ Leybourne olim Georgii Preston de Holkar ar<sup>i</sup> felice minimæ natū nuper Georgii Leybourne de Cunsicke ar<sup>i</sup> conjugis postq<sup>m</sup> fuerat, Primo Joanni Sayer de Worsell ar<sup>i</sup> secundo Nathanieli West ar<sup>o</sup> ex nobili prosapia Westorum titulo de la Warre insignitorum orto cui filiam postea Roberto Plumpton in Comitatu Eboracensi ar<sup>o</sup> nuptam pepertit in matrimonium data obiit die 16 Aprilis a<sup>o</sup> Dñi 1687 Ætat 63.”

“ Si bene vixeris in hoc mundo

Near to this, on the same wall, is another brass, inscribed :

“ Hear lieth the body of Mr. John Wareing the son of the Rev. Thomas Wareing Vicar of Garstang who died 24th October 1716.”

There are also two brasses referring to the Banastre family.

“ Here lyeth interred the Bodie of Christopher Banastre late of Preston in Amoundernes Esquire, sometimes Vice-Chancellor of the Countie Palatine of Lancaster for the space of 27 years the King's Ma<sup>ties</sup> Attorney Generall and one of His Ma<sup>ties</sup> Jvstices of the Peace qvorvm and oyer and terminer within the said Countie Baron of the Excheqvre at Lancaster Steward of the Borrough of Preston and Recorder of the Corporation of Lancaster who after he had lived 74 years departed this life at Catterall vpon Thvrsday the 14th Jvne Anno Christi 1649. “ Esto fidelis vsqve ad mortem et Dabo tibi corontam vitæ.”

On the north side of the altar is a marble monument bearing a full-length figure seated with a sword in the right hand. Inscribed is :

“ In Memory of Alexander Butler of Kirkland Hall and Beaumont Cote, Esq., who died the 6th May 1811, aged 79, descended from an ancient and honourable house ; he served his county in the important offices of high sheriff, constable of Lancaster Castle, deputy-lieutenant and magistrate, he chose an elegant retirement as most congenial with his literary and philosophical pursuits. This monument was erected by his successor and heir, Thomas Butler Cole, Esq.”

The following, on stone in the north aisle, all refer to members of this family :

"Elizabeth, daughter of Alexander and Elizabeth Butler, and wife of Mr. Singleton of Poulton, ob. 6 January 1737, æt 39.

"Elizabeth, wife of Alexander Butler, Esq., ob. September 19 1726, æt 63.

"Mrs. Crumbleholme, d<sup>r</sup> of Alexander and Elizabeth Butler, ob. October 25 1764, æt 46."

On the south chancel wall is a brass plate (which for many years was lying in the vestry) inscribed :

"Hoc tvmvlo inclvsus pastor pius integer Aynsworth.

IN NORTH AISLE.

On marble slab (on the wall) :

"Near to this place lieth the remains of Eliz. Parker of Preston, relict of the late Rev. Will<sup>m</sup> Parker, who died 23rd April 1778. Aged 63."

<sup>33</sup> The last three lines have been added at a later date.

"M. S.

"Ætatem virtutem superans."

"In Memory of W. F. Lucas Esquire of Brock Side in the Parish of Goosnargh in the County of Lancaster, who died on the 24th Feb<sup>r</sup> 1828 Aged 54 years."

In the west end two brass plates record :

"Here lies the body of Michael Clegg, son of the Rev. M<sup>r</sup> Clegg, now Schoolmaster of the Grammar School of Garstang, Minister of the Chapel of Ellel and Sherside, who departed this life 24th December 1729 and was buried the 26th of the same month.

"Here lies the Body of Sarah Varley, the wife of John Varley, who was born the 14th of February and died the 13th of March 1754. Aged 36."

On a stone :

"Here lyth the Body of Richard Blackburne Gent. who died September 21 Anno Domini 1724 ætatis 68."

In the north aisle of chancel, on a slab with raised letters :

"Here lye the remains of the Rev. D. Thomas Waring, Vicar of Garstang, who died October 20, A.D. 1722.

"Requiescat in pace."<sup>34</sup>

A brass plate on a tombstone under the late Kirkland pew was inscribed :

"In Memory of Henry Abbot of Garstang who died the xxv day of March Anno Domini MDCLXXI in the xxv year of his age.

"Henry Abbot dead
This living song doth sing
O're hell I doe triumph
O ! death where is thy sting."

<sup>34</sup> This was originally in the Sanctuary.

In the middle aisle is a stone bearing the following inscription :

“Iohannes Corles de Garstang Gen.

“Qui vitæ honestissime curriculum morti heu nimium præp opera, Non matura tamen transiit obiit, Die Septembris septimo. Anno ætatis suæ xxxv, Salutis vero nostræ MD.CCXXIX.”

On the north wall are two marble tablets :

In the church-yard the following monuments, &c., are noteworthy :

At the north end of the church is a stone slab, upon which is a full-length figure, which probably represents a priest, although, from it being much mutilated and worn, it is impossible to pronounce with certainty; the date and name have long since disappeared,<sup>35</sup> the hands are clasped, the folds of a garment, descending to the knee, are still discernable, as also a pointed hood-like head dress. At the same end of the yard is another raised figure of a man, over which is a name and date now almost obliterated, but which Whitaker,<sup>36</sup> a century ago, deciphered as "Leonard Foster 1631." A small square stone, which is reared against the chancel wall, bears an inscription which has been deciphered as "Elizabeth Foster 1632." The registers, however, contain no record of the burial of persons of that name in 1631 or 1632.

On the southern side of the church, in 1855, was found, three feet below the ground, a heavy stone slab, on which is carved, in broad relief, a figure, probably of a knight, but the inscription is almost entirely gone.

On the northern side is a stone inscribed, "Here lieth the bodies of Mr. Joseph Waddesworth and Thomas Goose of Catterall, who died the 15th of February 1715" (see p. 73).

On the southern side of the church are the pedestal and broken shaft of an old cross.

There are, no doubt, many more old monuments in this church-yard which have had inscriptions upon them of local interest, but the stone used appears to have been of too soft a nature to withstand the weather, and consequently the letters and figures are, in some cases, completely effaced, and in others quite undecipherable.

CHAPTER III.

GARSTANG CHAPEL.

(ST. THOMAS'S CHURCH.)

IN 1437 the Archdeacon of Richmond granted a license to the inhabitants of Garstang to have Divine Service performed in the chapel of Trinity, in that town, for one year;<sup>1</sup> probably this was rendered necessary in consequence of the non-residence of the vicar of Garstang (see p. 80), and the license may have lapsed at the end of the term.

In 1526 Adam Asteley was curate of Garstang,<sup>2</sup> and in 1562 "Dom. Thomas Parkinson" answered, with the vicar, at the visitation of the bishop;<sup>3</sup> it is possible that both these may have performed service at some chapel in the town of Garstang. A few years after the latter date a new chapel was built, or the old one repaired, as Robert Beck of Manchester, gentleman, by his Will dated 17th December 1566, gave "to the chappell of Garstang towards y<sup>e</sup> bigging or making of challis there xvi<sup>s</sup> viii<sup>d</sup>;<sup>4</sup> the meaning of this bequest is, that the sum named was to go either to the building fund, or to be expended in the purchasing of a chalice. The parliamentary survey of 1650 sets forth that there was then a chapel in the town, but that it had no minister, yet an order of both houses of parliament, dated 17th June 1646, had been made to the effect that 50*l.* per annum, "out of the proffitts of the tithes of the Impropriate Rectory of Goosnargh," which was sequestrated, was to be devoted to the maintenance of a "Minister at the chappell of the Market Towne of Garstange," and a similar amount out of the impropriate tithes of Kirkham was to be used for the same purpose.<sup>5</sup>

In the west end of the chapel, which replaced the one just referred to, was a stone, upon which was inscribed, "This Chapel was builded by Richard Longworth, Esquire, Bailiffe, 1666." Garstang was not incorporated until 1680, and under the royal charter Richard Longworth was not bailiff until 1692, but it appears that the office of bailiff was recognized by the inhabitants prior to their incorporation.

There was a small bell attached to the chapel, upon which was lettered, "William Ballon and Henry Abboutt Balives of Garstang 1668."<sup>6</sup> In 1769, the chapel being in a decayed condition, was abandoned, and shortly afterwards the present church was built; from a letter addressed by the inhabitants to the bishop of Chester, dated 31st May 1776,<sup>7</sup> it appears that the chapel was then going to be built by subscriptions, and that the residents wished to have it consecrated (the old chapel never having been consecrated), they also desired to have the site changed, giving as their reason, that Sir Edward Walpole had promised to give the land, but his agent having died he refused to execute the deed of gift.<sup>8</sup> It was proposed to call the new chapel All Saints, and a request was made that the holy communion might be celebrated on "Sundays instead of Saturdays," which was then the practice, as the curate had to attend at the parish church on regular communion days, and the writer of the letter adds, that he supposes "there is no other place in the whole kingdom where

<sup>8</sup> An entry in the bailiff's books confirms this as follows, "the site of the old chapel was granted on lease by Sir Edw. Walpole to Mr. Joseph Clarke, attorney-at-law, for a term of sixty years, from May-day 1776, and on which site he built the house now (1830) standing."

the sacrament is administered on working days." In 1848 the chapel was extensively repaired, consecrated, and a burial ground added; in 1874 the chancel and organ were built, and the church reseated. A handsome east window has recently been placed in this church, under which is the following inscription: "To the Glory of God and in loving memory of Richard Robinson of Garstange. This window was given by his wife and daughter A.D. 1878"; at the same time Mr. A. A. Simpson of Elmhurst presented a reredos of polished pitch pine. The stone font bears the following inscription, painted in black letters, Thomas Parkinson Hujus Curatus Hoc Deo Dedicavit M.DCC.XXXXXXX"; there is, however, no record of a curate of this name in 1770, and possibly the figures, in repainting, have been altered, and should represent 1723 (see page 102).

In the eighteenth century the Bailiff and Burgesses of Garstang appear to have taken upon themselves the management of the secular affairs of the chapel, and their records contain frequent allusions thereto, inter alia, the following:

THE CURATES OF GARSTANG CHAPEL.

NICHOLAS BRAY was the officiating minister here about the year 1626, when the parish registers record the baptism of Augustine son of "Nic. Bray prebit'." For some years previous to this he was the schoolmaster of Kirkland school (see chapter vi); he resigned in 1628.

JOHN WINCKLEY was curate of Garstang and possibly officiating minister here from 1637 to 164-, during which time he had two sons baptized. He signed the "Protestation" in 1641, and is described as "minister." He was the son of Edward Winckley of Preston, gentleman, and married Margaret, the daughter of Thomas Butler of Kirkland, Esq. (see chapter vii), and had issue, Thomas (baptized at Garstang 26th October 1638), who was the Registrar of the Duchy Chancery Office at Preston,<sup>10</sup> and William (baptized at Garstang 13th March 1639-40) a Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

THOMAS SMITH, in 1648, signed the "Harmonious consent of the Ministers of the Province within the County Palatine of Lancaster," and styles himself "preacher at Garstang Chapel"; he was not here in 1650, as there was then no separate minister (see page 99).

"Mr EDWARD LAURENCE, Pastour at y<sup>e</sup> parochial chaypell of Garstang," was married at Blackburn before Randle Sharples, 25 March 1655-6, to Anne the daughter of William Marsden of Tockholes. This marriage is entered both in the Blackburn and Garstang Registers (see chapter iv).

THOMAS PARKINSON "was presented to the chapel" on 21 August 1723 by the vicar of Garstang, who guaranteed him 30*l*.

<sup>10</sup> Thomas Winckley married Frances, one of the daughters of James Hodkinson of Preston, and Elizabeth, his wife, widow of Henry Lemon of the same place, and had issue (see The Reliquary, vol. xvii, p. 173).

a year;<sup>11</sup> for some years previously he had officiated as curate of the parish church. Thomas Parkinson was a collateral ancestor of the late Canon Parkinson, D.D., in whose delightful book, The Old Church Clock, some extracts are given from this curate of Garstang's Diary<sup>12</sup> (see chapter v). He died young, but the exact date is not known. In December 1729, a Mr. Huddleston was curate of the parish church, but we find no record of an appointment to St. Thomas' until 1735.

JOHN SUTTON was presented 5th January 1735-6;<sup>13</sup> he was a son of John Sutton of Newton-in-the-Fields, was educated at Winwick Grammar School, and took his B.A. at Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1733.<sup>14</sup> On leaving College he was appointed master of the Daresbury Grammar School. He remained at Garstang at least two years (see p. 101), and was succeeded by JOHN HUNTER, who, in 1737, was the schoolmaster of Kirkland (Churchtown) School. In 1760 he was elected to the living of Broughton, near Preston, and was afterwards curate of Pilling (see post).

JAMES FISHER was licensed to the "curacy of the augmented chapel," 11 October 1762.<sup>15</sup> His duties were defined clearly—he was to assist the vicar on sacrament days, visit the sick, and teach a school—for which he was to receive eight guineas from the vicar, at least 5*l.* per annum from the parishioners, and the school fees. He resigned the curacy on his appointment to the vicarage of the mother church (see chapter v).

JOHN MOSS was nominated, 24 May 1773, by James Fisher, then vicar of Garstang; he had previously been master of the Brownedge School, near Cartmel;<sup>16</sup> he held the cure until his death, in 1799; he was buried at Garstang church on 17th September.

Mr. Hewitson, in Our Country Churches, describes this curate as "a very combative soul," and furnishes an anecdote respecting a dispute between him and the Duke of Hamilton's agent, which was "fought out at Wedacre Holmes."

WILLIAM WAYLES THORNTON was nominated on 17th January 1800.<sup>17</sup> He entered Emmanuel College, Cambridge, as a sizar 10th June 1799, and as a "ten year man" graduated B.D. in 1809.<sup>18</sup> In 1815 he was elected a burgess of Garstang, and in 1816 served the office of bailiff. He died in 1821.

JAMES PEDDER, licensed 8th February 1822, resigned on his appointment to the vicarage in 1835 (see chapter v).

THE REV. WILLIAM ARMITSTEAD, the present curate, was appointed in 1835.

PILLING CHAPEL.

Tradition says that a chapel was erected here in the time of King John, and there is some evidence to support this, for as Theobald Walter (see p. 39), between the years 1193 and 1199, granted the "Haye of Pylin" for the building of an abbey by the canons of the Premonstratensian Order, "there serving God," it is clear that a religious edifice of some kind was then in existence; Baines, in his History of Lancashire,<sup>19</sup> states that a chapel here is named in a charter of Robert Fitz Bernard to the hospital of St.

John of Jerusalem, in the time of King John (see p. 23). The abbey at Pilling was never erected, but, subsequent to the foundation of Cockersand abbey, a grange was built where Pilling hall now stands, and doubtless attached it, or not far from, it was the small chapel dedicated to St. John the Baptist. In 1493 the Bishop of Lichfield granted a license to a devout nun, Agnes Bothe alias Schepard, who wished to leave Norton priory and live a life of solitude in a cell near the chapel of Pilling (apud capellam de Pylling in parochia de Garestang).<sup>20</sup>

In the map of Lancashire, dated 1598, preserved in the Harl. MSS. (Codex 6159), St. John's chapel is shown as then existing near to, but not attached to, the grange; in Mercator's map, a few years later, the chapel is marked but the grange is not; whilst the maps of Speed in 1610, Blome in 1617, and Janson in 1620, all show "Pilling hall" and "St. John's chapel" standing at some little distance apart. In 28 Henry VIII (1536-7) the land in Pilling, in the holding of the abbot of Cockersand, was worth 40*l.* per annum.<sup>21</sup>

After the final dissolution of Cockersand abbey in 1540, the chapel of Pilling shared the fate of the majority of the small Lancashire chapels, and fell into disuse and partial ruin. In the reign of Elizabeth divine service was again performed there, and an allowance of 10*l.* a year was made for the maintenance of the curate, who received "lodginge and dyett" from the farmer of the demesne lands. In the beginning of the next century, the necessary funds being withheld, an appeal, in 1621, was made to the king, the result being the following order:

An order vpon a Reference from y<sup>e</sup> Kinge touchinge y<sup>e</sup> Tithes of Pillyn in the county of Lancaster and findinge of a Curate there.

- preferred to his Highnes, with certaine articles annexed, by Thomas Jones on the behalfe of himselfe and 60 other inhabitants of Pillyn, within the Rectory of Garstange, in the countie of Lancaster, against S<sup>r</sup> Robert Bindlosse K<sup>t</sup>, proprietor of the said Rectory of Garstange, for withdrawinge the meanes and not mainteyninge a Curate att Pillyn chappell, within the said parish, and for exactinge of Tythe of the inhabitants of Pillyn w<sup>ch</sup> they ought not to pay, with other informacons of vexation, extortion, and oppressions therein contened, to referr the consideracon thereof vnto vs. Whereupon wee haue examined and fully heard the same debated before vs deliberately, and doe thinke fitt that a competent meanes be raised for the maintenaunce of a minister or curat of Pillyn, wth the consent of the said S<sup>r</sup> Robert Bindelosse and Richard Westmore, gent., authorized for the peticoners by writinge vnder their handes as agreed to be as followeth.

FIRST, that from henceforth there shalbee a minister from time to time continually kept att the said chappell of Pillyn, to read and say diuine seruice vpon all Sundays and vpon all holydayes appointed by the Church of England, and to doe the other rites aud duties belonginge to the diuine wor<sup>sh</sup>p and seruice of God vsed and allowed in the said chappell in the late Queene Elizabeth her tyme

AND that towards the maintenance of the said m<sup>r</sup>ster for the time being, and the xl<sup>s</sup> heretofore allowed out of or parcell of the xl<sup>li</sup> rent paiaable to the Kinges mat<sup>e</sup>, his heires and successors, for the said Rectorie of Garstange, shalbee yearly payd to the said m<sup>r</sup>ster att the audit att Lancaster as hath beene accustomed by his Ma<sup>ties</sup> receiver there; and because the same funde of xl<sup>s</sup> only will in no sorte mainteyne a minister, the said S<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Bindlosse, out of his charitable devocon and att our instance and request, albeit itt seemeth vnto vs that hee is not therevnto compellable by lawe, is contented and doth freely consent and graunt for him and his heyres, to giue and pay yearly, foreuer, for the further and better maintenance of the said m<sup>r</sup>ster for the tyme beinge, the yearly fonde or payment of tenn poundes, to be paid halfe yearly, by euen portions, out of the said Tithes of Pillyn, within the said Rectory of Garstange, viz<sup>t</sup>, at Whitsuntide and Martymas.

AND the said S<sup>r</sup> Robert Bindlosse is contented that if y<sup>e</sup> minister or curate of Pillyn shalbee vnpaid his tenn pounds pencon, or any parte thereof soe giuen him as aforesaid by the said S<sup>r</sup> Robert Bindlosse forth of the Tythes of Pillyn att the tymes aboue menconed, that then itt shall and maybe lawfull to and for the said Curate and his successors to enter into and take to his owne vse all the tythes in Pillyn aforesaid, and the same to keepe and vse to his most profit and comoditie vntill such tyme as the said Rent or payment and arrerages therof, if any such bee, shall bee fully paid and discharged to the said Curate of Pillyn for the tyme being. And whereas itt appeareth vnto vs that the ffarmer of the demesnes of Pillyn, who heretofore gaue lodginge and dye<sup>tt</sup> to the m<sup>r</sup>ster there, as also that the rest of the Inhabitants within Pillyn who are to receiue spirituall comfort thereby, should likewise contribute to this soe pious a worke, wee doe therefore thinke fitt, w<sup>ch</sup> is likewise consented vnto by the said Inhabitants by their agent authorized as aforesayd, that the Inhabitants for the time beinge, other then the said ffarmor, shall yearly pay for euer vnto and towards the findinge of the said minister for the time beinge the yearly summe or payment of eight pounds halfe yearly, the same to be taxed and layd equally and reasonably by six or fowre of the most substantiallest men of the said Inhabitants, and for that itt is meete that the ffarmor of y<sup>e</sup> dem<sup>nes</sup> there hauinge the best parte of the landes in Pillyn, and heretofore most charged with y<sup>e</sup> findinge of the minister, should contribute to soe goode a worke, ytt is therefore thought meete by vs that the said ffarmor, his Executors and Assignees, during his terme, and the Reverconers and their heires after the said Terme ended, doe paye yearly for euer vi<sup>l</sup> xiiij<sup>s</sup> iiij<sup>d</sup> towards the further maintenance of the said minister for the tyme beinge. AND wee thinke fitt that if the ffarmor of Pillyn, his executors or assignees, or the Reverconers or their heires after y<sup>e</sup> terme ended, or the Inhabitants for the tyme being, shall neglect their respecture payments to the said m<sup>r</sup>ster for the time beinge, or any time hereafter, contrary to the intent and true meaninge of this order and direcon. That in such case itt shalbee lawfull for the said S<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Bindlosse and his heires to stay his and their said payment in their hands vntill the said persons soe makinge defaulte doe make and performe their paiments accordinge to the tenour and meaning of this order.

AND FOR the other parte of the peticon and schedule thervnto annexed, beinge for matter of Tythes, fforasmuch as the same doth concerne matter of right whether Tythes be due or nott and who ought to pay, and what tythes and in what manner, w<sup>ch</sup> beinge matter of Title is fitt to be tried in the ordinarie course by lawe, wee thinke meete that if any the occupyers or Inhabitants, farmors or others, shall deteine his or their tithes of the landes aforesaid, S<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Bindlosse or his heires shall bring his or their action against one or two of them at the most, that soe the rights and title of the same may by ordinary course of lawe come in question, and as the tryalls therin shall fall out, soe the rest of the Leasees and occupiers of Pillyn shall clayme the like ffreedome, to be bound or free, as the tryal shal happen with or against the said p<sup>l</sup> or def<sup>s</sup> in the said tryall, without further vexacon or suite on either parte w<sup>ch</sup> is likewise assented vnto by both parties AND for the tyth salte wee hold itt fytt the like tryall to be made and to be conclusive in the like manner to both partyes. AND if the said Tythes be evicted from the said S<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Bindlosse or his heires, whereby hee or they haue no benefitt of Tythes to the value of tenne pounds out of Pillyn, but the same landes be freed of payment of tythes, wee think fitt that in such case the m<sup>ster</sup> for the tyme beinge be maintayned by the owners of lands and inhabitants in Pillyn aforesaid, att their owne proper charge, by and with the like payment of twenty foure poundes viij<sup>s</sup> iiij<sup>d</sup> ouer and besides the xl<sup>s</sup> issuinge out of the said Rent of the said Rectorie. And the tenne poundes payable by the said S<sup>r</sup> Rob<sup>t</sup> Bindlosse and his heires from such eviction of the tythes of Pillyn as aforesaid, vtterly to cease, in regard their Laydes in respect of their ffreedome of Tythes wilbee soe much the more of yearly value and worth vnto them. And for the rest of the articles vpon examination wee hold them nott fitt of any further proceedinge therein.

November 30 1621,

G. Cant. Geo. Coluert.<sup>22</sup>

Notwithstanding this order the parliamentary commissioners in 1650 report that, at "the chappell of Pillin" there is "noe minister but the Cure supplied by M<sup>r</sup> Lumley who hath beene silenc'd for severall misdemeanors, the Inhabitants being very many, humbly desire they may be made a Parish, and that a minister and competent maintenance bee allowed."

In 1675 a curate had been appointed, and from that time to the present the living has never been vacant for any lengthened period. Pilling, at the time, was a district almost isolated, the tidal waters of Morecambe Bay being kept off by the "dykes" or cultivated embankments. The only access to the place (other than on foot) was by a track along the shore, over the marsh from Cockerham to Pilling Lane.

The only inn in the village was called "The Providence," it was situate in what was then called "The Higher End Lane," to distinguish it from Pilling Lane, which is now in Preesall parish, although the inhabitants of the extreme west of that district still pay tithes to Pilling. The road to Preesall and Stalmine was begun in 1780, whilst the road to Garstang was not made passable until 1808; previous to that date the farm produce was taken to Lancaster or Preston market. The Knot End Railway was opened in 1870.

Bishop Gastrell<sup>23</sup> gives the value of Pilling as 11*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, of which 10*l.* was paid by the impropriator, and 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* by the crown.

Sometime about the year 1716 the chapel was found to be too small for the increased number of inhabitants and a petition was sent to the bishop praying that a new one might be erected in the centre of the chapelry; for the proper carrying out of this the bishop required certain securities, the nature of which will be seen from the following agreement: <sup>24</sup>

Whereas upon the humble petition of John Anyon Clerk, Robert Bennet, William Smith, William Hull and John Threlfall Minister and Chapelwardens of the Chapelry of Pilling in the County of Lancast<sup>r</sup> lately presented to the Right Reverend Father in God, Francis, Lord Bishop of Chester, on the behalf of themselves and the several Inhabitants freeholders and charterers of and within the said chapelry herein afterward that is to say Roger Hesketh of Northmeals in the sd County Esq., Robert Hesketh gent. son and heir apparent of the said Roger Hesketh, Edmund Hornby Esq<sup>r</sup>, John Addison gent., William Bell, Richard Dicknison (sic) sen., Mary Thornton widow, Stephen Ribby, Thomas Bell sen<sup>r</sup>, Agnes Bell widow, Ellen Kirkham, William Shepherd, Richard Tomlinson, Thomas Bell jun., Richard Dicknison, jun., John Mount, John Fox, Thomas Jollys, John Hey, Thomas Escam, William

sufficient security given him for and concerning the making and perfecting of a new chapel for the purpose in the s<sup>d</sup> petition mentioned. Now, know all men by these presents, that the s<sup>d</sup> Roger Hesketh &c. * * [names repeated] do hereby, for securing the erection & building of the said new chapel for the better satisfaction of the said Lord Bishop, for themselves, their heirs, &c., covenant, promise, grant, & agree, &c., that they or some of them shall & will, before the end of fourteen months next ensuing the date hereof, without any charge or trouble to any person or persons that have or hath or shall or may be agst y<sup>e</sup> building of such new chapel (other than such sumes of money w<sup>ch</sup> they shall voluntarily give), erect and build, or cause to be erected and built, in good, sufficient, decent, and workmanlike manner, a new chapel, to be of such length and breadth as before men<sup>co</sup>ned, in or near the middle or centre of the said chapelry, to be for ever after y<sup>e</sup> erecting and building thereof repaired and maintained at y<sup>e</sup> charge of all the Inhabitants, Freeholders and Charterers of and within y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Chapelry, &c. * * And the s<sup>d</sup> Roger Hesketh & Rob<sup>t</sup> Hesketh do hereby, for themselves, their Heirs, &c. * * covenant & promise to & with the said Lord Bishop, his successors & Assigns, that as well y<sup>e</sup> said chapel yard of or belonging to y<sup>e</sup> present old chapel as the scite or ground whereon the said chapel now standeth, shall for ever hereafter be appropriated, goe & remain to and for the sole proper use, benefit & behoof of y<sup>e</sup> Minister for y<sup>e</sup> time being of y<sup>e</sup> said intended new Chapel &c. * * And y<sup>e</sup> said Edmund Hornby doth agree, for himself, his Heirs, &c. * * to & wth y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Lord Bishop, that as well the old Chapell yard as y<sup>e</sup> scite whereon, y<sup>e</sup> same chapel now stands, shall for ever be appropriated for the sole use of the Minister, &c. * * For the true performance whereof they, the said Roger Hesketh &c. * * [names repeated] do hereby bind y<sup>m</sup>selves, their heirs, &c. * * to the s<sup>d</sup> Lord Bishop in the sum of three hundred pounds, &c., &c. As witness their hands & seals, y<sup>e</sup> third day of Oct. in y<sup>e</sup> year of our Lord 1716."

In accordance with the terms of this agreement the new chapel was built, and was consecrated in 1721. Of the old building nothing remains; but a few grass-covered, time-worn grave stones<sup>25</sup> mark the spot where "the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

The church as it now stands is a plain unpretending building of stone; at the west end is a double-arched belfry containing two bells, and over the south-west door is engraved a sun dial, with the inscription, "Thus eternity approaches. G. Holden 1766." On the key stone is the date "1717." On a stone near the bottom of the door is carved "17 W  $\frac{1}{2}$  E. 28." The font, which is of beautiful design, is believed to be several centuries old, as it is the one used in the old chapel. Inside the church on the north wall is the following:

"A.D. 1757.

Whereof given by

Q<sup>n</sup> Anne's Bounty £200

By other Benef<sup>ts</sup> £100."

A marble tablet on the same wall records:

"In memory of Robert Preston born at Pilling April 20th 1761 died at his residence Fir Grove near Liverpool November 19th 1833. His integrity was inflexible his benevolence unbounded and deeply will his loss be deplored by thousands of the indigent whom he was ever ready to relieve.

This Tablet was erected by Margaret Dawson his grateful dutiful and affectionate daughter."

Another tablet on this wall:

"In Memory of Benjamin Sykes, of Mains, Singleton, who lived equally esteemed and respected in the character of a husband, Father and Friend.

Died 23 June 1856, In the 74th year of his age. This Tablet was erected by his Widow and surviving children."

In the church yard are the following inscriptions:

On a brass plate on a tomb stone,

"Near this place lies the Body of Richard Whiteside who was born on the 25th of Jan<sup>y</sup> 1737 and died on the 7th of Nov<sup>r</sup> 1801. He was a native and constant Inhabitant of Pilling where he resided on his own estate by the cultivation of which and other agricultural employments he supported a large family. He was truly an English Yeoman, one of a body of men whose value cannot be placed too high and whose number it is to be lamented are decreasing. In discharging the social and domestic duties he was an affectionate husband, Father, relation and friend. And by a general conduct towards his neighbours showed a gentle and christian temper of mind. This stone is inscribed to his memory by Geoffrey Hornby Rector of Winwick who knew him long and well, sincerely respected him and who thus records his sense of the loss of this worthy man to the township of Pilling."<sup>27</sup>

On a plain stone :

"To the Memory of the Rev. James Potter the Minister of Pilling who died Sep<sup>r</sup> 30. 1825. Aged 69 years."

Another gravestone is

"Sacred to the Memory of Sarah wife of William Sandham who departed this life July 27th 1800 aged 70 years. She was the mother of 12 children four of which she had at one birth and lived three weeks."

The floor of the church was, so late as 1868, covered with rushes. The registers go back to 1621. The parsonage house was built in 1829; the churchyard was enlarged and enclosed in 1862.

THE CURATES OF PILLING.

— LUMLEY, though not the curate, appears to have officiated at Pilling for some little time before 1650 (see page 108).

OSWALD CROSKELL, "curat de Pilling, and Susannah Tomlinson was married ye 17th day of January anno 1675," so reads the Register. How long he held the office is unknown, but he had probably a son who was living in 1725, to whom the Rev. Peter Walkden refers in his Diary:

"Jan. 8th (1725) I came by the Old Hollins and over Wyre through Scorton to Brother Miller's direct. Jan. 9th Brother Miller having told me in Garstang how Oswald Crossgill wanted pay for the goods bought at his sale some time since I determined to pay him and remove the goods . . . . . I got John Macnoe and a horse and cart to follow me to Oswald's and paid him all I owed."<sup>28</sup>

RICHARD HARDY was curate in 1686. The Register for that year contains the following :

"Nov. 28. James Bibby and Margaret Bibby<sup>29</sup> married at Pilling Chapel by me R<sup>d</sup> Hardy, Curate."

On 15th November 1688 he was presented to the rectory of North Meols, where he died in 1708.<sup>30</sup> He was the second son of William Hardy of Louth in Lincolnshire, merchant, matriculated from Pembroke College, Cambridge, 31st May 1667 (aged sixteen), and there graduated B.A. 1671, and M.A. 1674.

GABRIEL DAWSON, priest, was licensed to the curacy 28th January 1687-8;<sup>31</sup> he was probably one of the sons of Richard Dawson and Bridget, his wife, who, by his Will (proved 14th January 1665), left his house to his fourth son, Richard; some land, near his house, to his eldest son, William; and to "the rest of his children, 10*l.* a piece."

Gabriel Dawson was buried at Pilling 15th November 1692,<sup>32</sup> and letters of administration were granted to his son, Benjamin Dawson of Old Hulton, near Kendal, and Cecelia Johnson of Pilling.

That the Dawsons of Pilling were of the same stock as the Dawsons of Kendal there can be no doubt, and of this family was Robert Dawson, bishop of Clonfert in Ireland, who was buried at Kendal 3rd April 1645.<sup>33</sup> Jacob Dawson of Highgate,

<sup>29</sup> The Wills of James and Margaret Bibby were proved at Richmond 1705 and 1709.

<sup>30</sup> His successor was presented 24th July 1708. He was not buried at North Meols. A Richard Hardy was vicar of Dean, near Bolton, 1636-45.

Kendal, gentleman, had, by Mary, his second wife, a son Gabriel, who took his B.A. degree at Oxford in 1731; and a Gabriel Dawson of Farcross Bank was buried at Kendal 24th September 1701.<sup>34</sup>

THOMAS HUNTER was here in 1701, when a record of his marriage, on 11th January, to Margaret York of Lancaster is entered in the Registers; nothing more is known of him; he was probably of the same family as the two vicars of Garstang of the same name.

JOHN ANYON was nominated to the curacy 24th May 1715, by Roger Hesketh and Edmund Hornby, two out of the three lords of the manor (i.e., they held with another the entire lordship); the other was reputed a Popish recusant.<sup>35</sup> The registers record the baptism of two daughters of this curate, viz: Jane in 1716, and Ann in 1718.

He was one of the petitioners for the building of the new chapel in 1716, and he held the living until 1731. In 1762 he was curate of Ribby with Wrea, in the parish of Kirkham,<sup>36</sup> and in 1769 he was also curate of Lund in the same parish, in which capacity he signed the "Recantation" of William Gant, Roman Catholic priest of Mowbreck, which was read in Kirkham church 28 May 1769.<sup>37</sup> He died in 1770, aged 86.

JOHN COULTON was nominated 10 September 1731,<sup>38</sup> and was here until 1758.

GEORGE HOLDEN was born in 1720, and was probably a native of Yorkshire, in which county he held an estate called Birch Hill, in Easington Dale Head, in the parish of Slaidburn.<sup>39</sup> Sometime before 1753 he was appointed to the office of second master of the Free Grammar School of Bentham, near Lancaster, and in that year, on 20th September, he was there married to Jane, the daughter of Marmaduke and Alice Brooks.<sup>40</sup> On 11th May 1758 he was nominated to the curacy of Pilling,<sup>41</sup> which he held until September 1767, when he was preferred to the perpetual curacy of the little chapel at Tatham Fell, in the parish of Tatham, where he lived at a place called "the Green," which, at that time, belonged to the chapel.

George Holden was a great mathematician and a good scholar, and was the author of an annual publication entitled Holden's Tide Tables, for the compilation of which he is said to have received a government grant. Local tradition says that he was a little hump-backed man, with one arm shorter than the other. Several characteristic anecdotes are told of him, as, for instance, that one Sunday having nearly completed his three miles<sup>42</sup> walk from his house to his chapel, he suddenly discovered that, in one of his tide calculations, he had left out a cipher; back he at once turned and corrected his tables, but, adds the octogenarian narrator, "there was no preaching at Tatham Fell that day." Holden was also somewhat of a religious controversialist, and on one occasion he was called into the "Punch Bowl Inn" to argue with the Roman Catholic priest, who, getting the worst of the discussion, lost his temper, and on Holden's saying that "God made man upright at first," he thundered out in reply, "then who the devil made the hump-backed ones"?

George Holden died in May 1793, and was buried at Bentham,

<sup>40</sup> Marmaduke Brooks lived in Higher Bentham and was a man of good position; his daughter Jane was baptized 26th June 1731.

where a monument was erected to his memory, and which bears the following inscription :<sup>43</sup>

"S. M.

His Will was proved at Lancaster 11th June 1793 ; the following is a brief abstract :

"I, George Holden of the Green, in the parish of Tatham, clerk, &c., devise to my son George Holden, all my estate called Birch Hill, situate in Easington Dale Head, in Slaidburn, chargeable with a payment of 200*l.* to my daughter Catherine, wife of the Rev. Mr. Johnson of Doncaster ; and 100*l.* to my daughter Jane, wife of Daniel Elletson of London, Esq. ; I give 20*l.* to my daughter Hannah, wife of Christopher Procter of Skipton ; to Alice Holden, all my estate in Upper Bentham, consisting of five dwelling-houses and a barn, with two crofts and gardens ; to my son George, my three book cases with all my Latin and Greek books, my mathematical books, either printed or in manuscript, my Hadley's Quadrant sector and scales, and all the books and instruments useful in navigation, and also all my books, papers, and instruments used in calculating the Liverpool Tide Table, upon condition that he will give to my daughter Alice all the profits of the Tide Tables for two years after my decease ; to my grandson George Holden, my silver watch ; to my grandson George Holden Procter of Skipton, 5*l.*, and the like sum to each of the children of my daughter Jane Elletson ; to my daughter <sup>43</sup> The monument consists of three black slabs, with stone divisions, with white marble rim, &c. Bentham church has recently been rebuilt, but the rector (the Rev. Edgar Sherlock), to whom I am indebted for many of the above particulars, has assured me that the monument will be cared for and replaced.

Alice, my writing desk, silver pint, and my best feather bed ; all my other books, in English and French, I give to my three daughters, with a desire that they will not sell them but divide them equally.

"I appoint George and Alice Holden executors of this my last Will."

He had issue : Francis, baptized at Bentham 19th June 1756, buried 29th November following ; George (of whom hereafter) ; Hannah, baptized at Pilling 29th March 1760, married Christopher Procter of Skipton, and had issue ; Elizabeth, baptized at Pilling 8th August 1762, died before 1793 ; Jane, baptized at Pilling 16th April 1765, married Daniel Elletson of London, Esq., and had issue ; Catherine, baptized at Tatham Fell 20th October 1767, married the Rev. — Johnson of Doncaster, and had issue ; Alice, baptized at Tatham Fell 25th March 1770, unmarried in 1793.

George Holden was baptized at Bentham 29th December 1757. About the year 1781 he obtained the mastership of the Free Grammar School of Horton-in-Ribblesdale, where he was married, on 14th September 1782, to Ann Procter of that parish. On 21 May 1798 he was instituted vicar of Horton, of which church he owned the advowson. He succeeded his father to the perpetual curacy of Tatham Fell, which he held until his death, continuing, however, to live at Horton, where he died in December 1820 ; a marble tablet in the church bears the following inscription :

"In Memory of the Rev. George Holden, LL.D., for many years Head Master of the Free Grammar School of Horton-in-Ribblesdale, and minister of this church ; he died 31st December 1820, aged 63 years. This monument was erected by some of his pupils as a tribute of grateful respect to his memory." <sup>44</sup>

Dr. Holden continued the Tide Tables begun by his father. He was a man of high classical and mathematical attainments.<sup>45</sup> He <sup>44</sup> He and his wife were buried at the west end of the church-yard. Against the end of the church is a stone tablet, recording the death of the latter ; she was buried 7 July 1794, aged 36. For some of the above facts I have to thank the Rev. Joseph Senior, LL.D., vicar of Horton-in-Ribblesdale.

left issue, one son, George Holden, who, in 1811, was instituted to the vicarage of Maghull near Liverpool, where he died, and was buried 19th March 1865, aged 82 years. He was never married. He was a good classical scholar, and was the author of several theological works.<sup>46</sup> ✓ CUTHBERT HARRISON was nominated, on the resignation of the last curate, 15th September 1767.<sup>47</sup> He was the second son of Richard Harrison of Bankfield in Singleton, in the parish of Kirkham, gentleman, and Agnes, his wife, who was daughter and heiress of the Rev. — Crombleholme, vicar of St. Michael's-le-Wyre. His great grandfather was the Cuthbert Harrison who was for some years curate of Singleton.<sup>48</sup> Cuthbert Harrison ✓ of Pilling was a student at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took his B.A. in 1766; he died at Clifton, in the parish of Kirkham, 1st June 1790, and was buried at Singleton, aged 46. He was never married.

JOHN HUNTER was nominated to the curacy 1st October 1774; he had been appointed master of Kirkland (Churchtown) school in 1737, and a little later to the curacy of St. Thomas' church, Garstang, which he resigned in 1760 on his preferment to the living of Broughton, near Preston, which he held until his appointment to Pilling, where he died in the year 1781.

WILLIAM BATESON was appointed, 15th October 1781,<sup>49</sup> on the death of John Hunter; he resigned in 1798.

THOMAS GODFREY was nominated 17th October 1798.<sup>50</sup> He had been assistant curate from 1795 to that date. He resigned in 1802, and was instituted to the vicarage of Melton Mowbray in 1820, which he held until his death in 1832.

At this time Peter Godfrey of East-Bergholt, county Suffolk, Esq., was patron of the living of Melton Mowbray.

JAMES POTTER was nominated 8 December 1802;<sup>51</sup> he was the son of James Potter of Ellergill, in the parish of Orton in Westmoreland, and Elizabeth his wife; he was christened at Orton church 5 September 1756.

Before coming to Pilling, James Potter held curacies in the neighbourhood of Whitehaven and at Woodplumpton. He was an honest, straightforward, yet, withal, free-and-easy sort of man, who specially commended himself to the "heartly lads of Pilling," as they were called half a century ago. Many tales are told about him, most of which have doubtless been exaggerated and contorted; that he could preach well, and, if need be, fight well, however, may be accepted as true,<sup>52</sup> as also that he was respected by all his parishioners. He died 30 September 1825, aged 69, and was buried at Pilling (see page 113).

JAMES DAWSON BANISTER succeeded the last curate. He was appointed in 1825, and resigned in 1876.

JOHN WILSON WAITHMAN, M.A., is the present vicar.

CALDER VALE CHURCH,

Dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, was consecrated 12 August 1863. The cost of erection was 2,500*l.*, which was raised by subscription; it contains a handsome Caen stone pulpit, erected to the memory of W. J. Garnett of Quernmore Park, Esq.

During the building of the church the Rev. Thomas Carter (afterwards vicar of Littleborough) was the curate-in-charge.

From 1863 to 1868 the incumbent was the Rev. Edward Wright, who was succeeded by the present vicar, the Rev. John Gornall. Calder Vale is now a distinct ecclesiastical parish, and contains a population of 836.

WINMARLEIGH CHURCH,

Dedicated to St. Luke, was consecrated in 1876. The incumbent is the Rev. T. B. Armitstead, B.A., chaplain to Lord Winmarleigh.

BONDS ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

In 1784 the Catholics built a chapel in Garstang, which was abandoned when the handsome Gothic church in Bonds was erected in 1858. In 1825<sup>53</sup> the Rev. Michael Hickey, a native of Kilkenny, was appointed priest in Garstang, and it was mainly through his instrumentality the church, presbytery, and schools in Bonds were, at a cost of 7,000*l.*, erected. Father Hickey died 12 August 1871,<sup>54</sup> and was succeeded by the Rev. Canon Seed, who died at the residence of his brother, Mr. Henry Seed of Stirzaker house, Catterall, 8 March 1877. He was the son of James Seed of Heaton hall, and was educated at Ushaw college.

CLAUGHTON ROMAN CATHOLIC CHAPEL.

We have discovered no evidence of an earlier chapel here than the one now in existence, which was built in 1792. The list of priests who have been stationed at Claughton, however, goes back to the middle of the seventeenth century, and service is said to have been performed prior to the erection of the chapel in the priest's house, which was built in 1682<sup>55</sup>, and there was a private chapel at Claughton Hall at a very early period (see p. 79).

The following is a list of the priests who have served this mission,<sup>56</sup> viz.:

✓ EDWARD WALMSLEY prior to 1672.

EDWARD BLACKBURN was appointed in 1672, and was buried at Garstang, 26 September 1708-9.

RICHARD TAYLOR, nephew to Edward Blackburn; he built the priests' house in 1682.

ROGER BROCKHOLES, son of John Brockholes of Claughton (see chapter vii).

R. BIRTWISTLE

JAMES PARKINSON COTTAM died in 1766.

JOHN BARROW, a native of Westby, in the parish of Kirkham, was priest here for forty-five years; in his youth he served for seven years on board a man-of-war. He died at Claughton in 1811, aged 76 years.

ROBERT GRADWELL was born at Clifton, in the parish of Kirkham, 26 January 1777. He was one of the professors of Ushaw college from 1802 to 1809; he remained at Claughton until 1817, when he was appointed rector of the English college at Rome; in 1828 he was appointed as coadjutor of the London district, at the same time being consecrated bishop, with the title of bishop of Lydda. He died in London 15 March 1833. He was the author of Dissertation on the Fable of Papal Antichrist, 1816, and other treatises.

HENRY GRADWELL (brother to Robert Gradwell) was also <sup>56</sup> For most of the names in the list we are indebted to Hewitson's Our Country Churches.

born at Clifton ; he officiated here for forty-three years. The erection of the schools in 1853, and the formation of the present sanctuary, were due to his exertions ; he died in May 1860, aged 67, and was succeeded by his nephew, ROBERT GRADWELL, who had assisted him for some years before his death, and who is now in charge of the mission.

SCORTON CATHOLIC CHAPEL.

The present chapel was erected in 1861, and replaced a small thatched building, which in its early days was used as a clogger's shop on week days.

The following is a list of the priests appointed to Scorton :<sup>57</sup>

Christopher Jenkinson before 1745.

John Sergeant 1745 to 1795, in which year he died.

James Lawrenson 1796 to 1826.

John Dixon 1826 to 1830.

John Woodcock 1830 to 1837.

Thomas Gillett 1837 to 1838.

Robert Turpin 1838 to 1863.

Dr. Ilsley<sup>58</sup> 1863 to 1868.

Austine W. Splaine 1868, and now in charge.

GARSTANG INDEPENDENT CHAPEL.

The date of the building of this chapel is unknown, but it is probably about a century old. In 1725 David McMurry was the Independent minister at Garstang.<sup>59</sup>

GARSTANG WESLEYAN CHAPEL

Was built in 1814. John Wesley was twice at Garstang, in 1765, when he was the guest of James Edmondson,<sup>60</sup> and in 1770, when he preached in the Independent chapel.<sup>61</sup>

SCORTON WESLEYAN CHAPEL.

The site of this chapel was given by the Duke of Hamilton and the expense of its building was defrayed by George Fishwick of Spring Field, Scorton, Esq.;<sup>62</sup> it was opened in September 1842.

NATEBY BAPTIST CHAPEL,

Or, as it is sometimes called, "Nook Chapel," was opened in 1839. There is a graveyard adjoining it.

PILLING WESLYAN CHAPEL

Was erected in 1813.

BILSBORROW WESLEYAN CHAPEL

Was built in 1815.

BONDS FRIENDS MEETING HOUSE

Was built in 1828, mainly through the instrumentality of the late Richard Jackson<sup>63</sup> of Calder Vale and his brothers.

<sup>62</sup> George Fishwick was the fourth son of Webster Fishwick of Burnley, and was born 5th June 1789, and died 19th October 1854. (See History of Goosnargh and Wesleyan Mag. 1855).

<sup>63</sup> Richard, John and Jonathan Jackson came to Calder Vale from Spout House in Wyersdale, where the family had for some time been settled.

CHAPTER IV.

THE CHURCHWARDENS AND THE PARISH REGISTERS.

GARSTANG had, no doubt, at one time, its regular constituted body of "sworn men," like Lancaster, Preston, Goosnargh, and Kirkham,<sup>1</sup> but the distinct features which mark the select vestry in these places have not been preserved here.

The oldest vestry book only dates back to 1734, and from it we glean the following items, which show that the parish work was entrusted to four churchwardens and twenty-four sidesmen, and that the parish itself (Pilling not being included) was divided into four quarters, each of which returned one churchwarden and six sidesmen, the latter being always called "the gentlemen sidesmen," and apparently elected for life, or during the good will of the parishioners.

A List of the names of the Gentlemen Sidesmen for the Parish of Garstang in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and thirty four :

 Mr. James Cortes (erased, and Mr. Richard Cortas inserted).

CLAUGHTON QUARTER.

Other lists follow: the next is dated 1733, and, as in the preceding one, when a vacancy occurs the name was simply struck out and another inserted.

CHURCHWARDENS. 1734.

William Deane of Nately, for Garstang Quarter. His assess<sup>mt</sup> 4s 10d; disbur<sup>ms</sup> 12s 10d; all paid.

Robert Deane of S. borough for Mr. Benjamin Whitehead, of Cloughton Quarter. His assess<sup>mt</sup> are 14s; disbur<sup>ms</sup> 14s; all paid.

 Will. Sudall of Catterall, for Claughton.
 John Shaw, for John Story of Wiersdale, for Wiersdale.
 Edw<sup>d</sup> Smith of Barnaker, for Barnaker.

This List is complete to 1777 ; the next two years are wanting ; in 1780 (and afterwards), the churchwardens are not named (as such), but the payments, &c., are recorded thus :

GARSTANG QUARTER.

"Ri. Singleton of Winmarley collected by 12 Fifteens 25*l*; disbursed 25*l*."

The vestry books contain nothing more of historical interest.

A scrap of paper (preserved in the church chest), probably a portion of one of the churchwardens' accounts, amongst other items, contains :

"13 April 1784 Robert Hornby's Bill. Whipping Dogs out of church 3*s*."

"Easter 1791, for the same service 5*s*., and for Rushing the church 3*s*."

THE PARISH REGISTERS.

The oldest volume commences in 1567, and is in a fair condition ; the registers are, from that to the present, complete, with the following exceptions, viz., January to June 1601, January to March 1609, September to December 1653, April 1659 to December 1660, which are wanting.
